UNION OFFICER AVOIDS ARREST BY ENDING LIFE

Deputy Sheriff Called to Arrest Simon Schuster, Masons' Treasurer.

HIS ACCOUNTS SHORT

Under Pretext of Getting Overcoat Enters House and Swallows Poison.

PROMISED TO SETTLE

Officials of Union Had Waited a Month for Discrepancy to Be Adjusted.

Simon Schuster, treasurer of the German Stone Masons' Protective Union, Branch No. 79, killed himself by swallowing carbolic acid in the rear yard of his home, 6639 Hancock avenue, Saturday, when a Deputy Sheriff called to arrest him on a warrant charging him with being short in his accounts with the organization.

The warrant was issued on complaint of other members of the union and charged Schuster with being short $360. Deputy Sheriff Thomas met Schuster as he was leaving home, and told him he was under arrest.

Schuster asked permission to return to the house for a moment. He walked to the back yard, drank the acid while out of the officer's sight, and entered the house. He died before a physician reached him.

Schuster was 64 years old. He had a wife and three sons and daughters.

He had been treasurer of the Stonemasons' organization for 12 years. Sept. 19 he resigned and Louis Maurer was elected to take his place.

Admitted His Shortage.

At that time, according to the story told Friday to Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Falkenhainer, examination of Schuster's books by the new treasurer showed a shortage.

Schuster, his fellow officers say, admitted that he owed the union $360, and said his plight was due to personal misfortunes. He asked for time, saying he would straighten the matter.

A month passed and he did nothing, the others say, toward paying the debt. Then they decided to invoke the law. The application for the warrant was made by John Bartholomew, president of the Union, branch 79; Jacob Ganzert, financial secretary, and Maurer, the new treasurer.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

FARMAN FLIES 20 MILES CROSS COUNTRY IN SHOWING POSSIBILITIES OF AEROPLANE

Guides Machine Over Trees and Houses, Lands Safely in One Hour.

MOURMELON, France, Oct. 31.—Henry Farman yesterday for the first time gave a practical demonstration of the possibilities of the aeroplane by flying 20 miles without mishap.

He ascended at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and after encircling the field once turned his machine in the direction of Rheims.

Soaring over the tops of the trees, the aeroplane rapidly disappeared from view.

An hour later a telegram was received from Farman announcing his safe arrival at Rheims.

BROTHER-IN-LAW OF JOHN D. SAYS HE'S REALLY FOR TAFT

Oil Magnate Has Favored Republican Candidate Ever Since His Nomination.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 31.—W. C. Rudd, brother-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, said today that the oil man had strongly favored the candidacy of Mr. Taft ever since the latter's nomination for President.

"Mr. Rockefeller has always been a Republican in national politics," said Mr. Rudd, "and to the best of my knowledge he has never voted for a Democratic candidate for President. He has never made a secret of this fact and during the past summer he frequently said in my hearing that he thought the election of Mr. Taft would lead to the return of normal business conditions."

PAID FOR GRAVE, COFFIN AND FUNERAL, THEN ENDED LIFE

Widower of Mascoutah Pinned Last Dollar to Note Dividing Belongings.

A coffin was ready, a hearse and carriage were hired, $7 was left with an undertaker for the Rev. Herman Krug, and the fee paid for digging the grave, when Thomas Chuhchuh of Mascoutah, Ill., pinned his last dollar bill to a note disposing of his personal belongings and killed himself with carbolic acid at the home of his niece, Mrs. Ida Merz, at Mascoutah.

Chuhchuh was a widower, 68 years old. He had been out of work for some time and his small savings were dwindling rapidly. A week ago he went to a Mascoutah undertaker and made all arrangements for his own funeral, telling the undertaker that he wanted to be prepared in the event of his sudden death.

Friday afternoon the old man went to his room, spread a pallet on the floor, lay down and drank the acid. Late in the afternoon Mrs. Merz's little girl, Ida, went to take the old man a lunch. She found him dead.

He will be buried in the coffin he selected and the grave he paid to have dug in the Mascoutah City Cemetery Sunday.

The reason for this great supremacy is found in the fact, that the circulation and pulling power of the POST-DISPATCH in its home field is greater than that of all other St. Louis daily newspapers combined, selling as it does each day an average of one paper for every home in St. Louis where the English language is read.

MACK REPEATS CHARGE DENIED BY ROOSEVELT

Democratic Chairman Insists Republican Committee Made Oil Deal.

SAYS HE HAS PROOF

President's Statement "Loses Force" in View of the Parker Case.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—National Chairman Mack today issued a statement regarding President Roosevelt's denial of charges of relations between the Republican National Committee and the Standard Oil Co. He said he had "had positive proof for 10 days that negotiations were going on between the Taft managers and the Standard Oil Co., and of the efforts of the Republican party to get contributions from the Standard Oil Co."

Mr. Mack's statement follows:

"President Roosevelt's denial of the relations between the administration and the Standard Oil Co. loses force when it is remembered that he made a similar denial four years ago, when Judge Parker declared that the Republican managers in charge of Mr. Roosevelt's campaign were receiving money from corporations.

"He denied that story more vehemently than he does the present charge. No one has forgotten that both Mr. Harriman and Mr. Roosevelt himself confirmed Judge Parker's charges. So far as denying the relations betwen President Roosevelt and the Standard Oil Co. is concerned, Mr. Roosevelt forgets that Mr. Taft and his managers want to do a little bargaining of their own.

Roosevelt Wants Quiet.

"They also know that Mr. Roosevelt wishes to be quiet in the event of Mr. Taft's election.

"Mr. Roosevelt must know that the Republican managers for Mr. Taft felt the necessity of getting another million dollars at this particular junction, and that the loss of the Standard Oil's millions in this campaign was one of the things that the Grand Old Party could not get along without, and therefore the Taft managers made a successful bargain with the Standard Oil people.

"As to whether Mr. Taft will cheat Wall street, the Standard Oil Co. and the Steel Trust, if he should be elected, or stand with Mr. Roosevelt, who nominated him, that is a question that the public can determine for themselves.

"Chairman Hitchcock does not say that the committee is getting money from individuals. If the Republican National Committee wants the public to take any stock in their statement, and to believe the actual truth of the contributions to the campaign, they should have made their contributions public from day to day, as the Democratic party has done. If so, they would not have received $100,000 at a time from any individual or corporation."

VON BUELOW QUARRELS WITH KAISER; RESIGNS

Emperor Claims Credit for Crushing Boers and Chancellor Is Enraged.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—Following a most dramatic scene in which he bitterly reproached the Kaiser for interfering in foreign affairs, Chancellor Prince von Buelow tendered his resignation today. It was at once accepted by the Kaiser.

The Chancellor pointed out to the Emperor that the latter's published interview in the London Telegraph, claiming credit for the war plans adopted by Great Britain in crushing the Boers had reflected discredit upon the Chancellor's office and had put him in a ridiculous position. The Chancellor stated that it was the unanimous belief of the German press that the Emperor's action was unwise.

In reply the Emperor replied that he would not allow the Chancellor to control his actions, and that he, as a divinely inspired monarch, intended always to do what he thought was right.

The Chancellor then demanded that the Emperor give his pledge never again to take any decisive public step in connection with foreign affairs without consulting the Chancellor.

Emperor William, who resents any limitation of absolute power or any ban being placed on his actions, indignantly refused. The Chancellor then tendered his resignation.

It is said that the Emperor's favorite, Prince Max Egon Fuerstenberg, will be Prin [illegible] successor.

AZBY CHOUTEAU IS SUED FOR DIVORCE BY BEAUTY OF ST. LOUIS

MRS. CORA BAKER CHOUTEAU.

LAW BREAKER M'ADAMS WOULD BE LAW MAKER

Candidate [illegible] Legislature Named by Supporters of Morrissey and Walsh.

Whether Felix, alias "Fish" McAdams, a notorious lawbreaker, shall be chosen to help make laws at Jefferson City next winter will be decided by the voters of the Third Legislative District at the general election, Tuesday, Nov. 3.

The Third District is composed of Wards 3, 4, 5 and Precincts 2, 6, 7, 12, 13 and 14 of Ward 6; all of Wards 14, 15, 16 and Precincts 1, 2 and 3 of the Twenty-second Ward. It is Democratic usually by from four to six thousand.

McAdams owes his nomination to William J. ("Boots") Brennan, Justice of the Peace "Jimmy" Miles and Lawler Daley, the men who are responsible for the nomination of Harry Walsh and Eddie Morrissey, Democratic nominees for Circuit Attorney and Sheriff.

Identified With "Gang" Leaders.

In recent elections "Fish" McAdams has been conspicuously identified with the "gang" leaders. He considered his pull so strong at one time that he started a lid-lifting club under the title of the "North St. Louis Democratic Club."

Capt. Pickel of the North Market Street Station says this was a lid-lifting organization, and he broke it up.

"I caused 'Fish's' arrest, but we couldn't get direct evidence against him," said Pickel. "He is one pretty smooth fellow. He is so slippery that he can slip through anybody or anything."

"Fish" displayed unusual activity at the recent primary election. He worked hard not only for himself, but for other candidates.

Polled Banner Vote.

And, notwithstanding the fact that "Fish" McAdams has served three months in the Workhouse for larceny; another term of nine months in the House of Refuge for robbery, and that he has been arrested 22 times and convicted several times of various offenses, he polled the banner Democratic vote of his district at the August election.

In the Third Ward he received 15[illegible] votes. Harry Walsh, Democratic nominee for Circuit Attorney, got 15[illegible]; W. S. Cowherd, for Governor, 1540, and Bass [illegible]

Wife Charges Scion of Old Family With Desertion and Non-Support---Wed in 1884, Separated in 1904.

Mrs. Cora Baker Chouteau, a rival of the famous St. Louis beauty, Nellie Hazeltine, for the premier rank of the belle of local society a quarter of a century ago, and who formerly lived at 511 North Newstead avenue, filed suit Saturday for divorce from Azby A. Chouteau, a scion of the family that founded St. Louis, himself a prominent society beau and National Guardsman in past days.

The petition for divorce states that the Azby Chouteaus were married in 1884, and lived together until 1904. Mrs. Chouteau alleges that her husband deserted her and has not supported her since that time, and that she does not know where he is now. They have two grown sons, Azby A. Jr. and Henry A. Chouteau.

The news of the suit for divorce will be of profound interest in the "old-family" set of St. Louis society, and especially among the long-established French families, who are regarded as the real St. Louis "aristocrats" in the matter of lineage and conceded high social station. The Azby Chouteaus were brilliant members of this society in the times when the old Home Circle Club was in its glory, and their family connections ally them to many leaders of the present "high society" of St. Louis.

Had But One Rival.

For several years before her marriage to young Azby Chouteau, Miss Cora Baker was a St. Louis "toast." It was a disputed point as to whether she or Nellie Hazeltine, who later became the wife of Frederick W. Paramore, a wealthy St. Louisan, and who died about a year after her marriage, was the accepted belle of St. Louis. The competition rested between these two—there were many other beautiful St. Louis girls in that day, but these two stood in a class by themselves.

Their respective types of beauty were radically different. Cora Baker was a tall, dashing blonde, with a full and well-rounded figure, a tempting smile, a manner of great vivacity, and with a gayety of temperament that kept her always in the front rank of the "smartest" of the "smart set" of that period.

She possessed a daring wit, as well, and many of her bon-mots and epigrammatic sayings were treasured in anecdote for years after she married Azby Chouteau and went with him to a Western ranch which he had bought.

Belong to Old Families.

Nellie Hazeltine was of a quieter type, brown-haired, with soft brown eyes, a delicately chiseled face, and with the exquisitely finished manner of what is now called "our grandmother's day." She was famous for her beauty, not only in St. Louis, but in Virginia, and for several seasons was the belle of the celebrated White Sulphur Springs. [illegible] of those Western families that boasted a Southern ancestry.

Azby A. Chouteau is a member of the August Chouteau branch of the Chouteau family, known as the "elder branch." He is a mining engineer by profession, and has lived many years in the West. A short time ago he inherited a fortune from an uncle, but has always been in comfortable circumstances. It was when he was a favorite society beau and an officer in the old First Regiment, N. G. M., of St. Louis, then composed of young men of the best families, that he wooed and won the dashing Miss Cora Baker. He is 50 years old.

For some years past Mrs. Cora Baker Chouteau has spent much of her time abroad. Her most recent visit to St. Louis was during the World's Fair in 1904—the year when, according to her petition for divorce, her husband deserted her—and was much in evidence here, being brilliantly entertained as a distinguished former belle, and being especially popular in army circles, one of her warmest friends being the wife of an army officer then stationed at Jefferson Barracks.

Azby Chouteau is the son of Henry C. Chouteau Jr. of the elder branch of the Chouteau family. He is a nephew of the late J. Gilman Chouteau, who recently died in the Southern Hotel, where he had lived for many years, and was one of the beneficiaries under his uncle's will, probably to the extent of $50,000.

Mr. Chouteau is a mining engineer by profession and has lived for many years in the West, although calling St. Louis his home. In the early seventies he was mining in the Black Hills during the stirring days of the Sioux Indian warfare. He has been connected with the development of the Texas sulphur mines, the Southern California oil field and the gold mines of Washington. He is now living in Santa Cruz, Cal.

Twenty-five years ago Mrs. Cora Baker Chouteau shared with Nellie Hazeltine the title of belle of St. Louis. She was exceedingly beautiful and vivacious and the toast of the town.

For many years, until the World's Fair, she had not maintained a house in St. Louis. During the World's Fair she established a house here and did a great deal of entertaining, and was a markedly conspicuous figure at all the official functions, where the splendor of her garments made her a notable character. She is now said to be in Montana, where she went with a party of friends during the summer.

Mrs. Chouteau of late years has spent her time between Washington and New Orleans, which is the home of her family.

They have two sons, Azby Chouteau Jr., 25 years old, and Henry A. Chouteau, 17, both of who[illegible] live in St. Louis.

Girls employed in the buildings made a dash for elevators, fire escapes and stairways. All succeeded in escaping from the buildings, although several girls who sought refuge on the roof of an adjoining building fainted.

The main plant of the Paul E. Wolff Shirt Co. occupies the building at 817 Washington avenue, and it was filled with girls on every floor. The girls employed on the top floor climbed through windows to the roof of the building east, and remained there until they were persuaded to come down.

Elevator Boy Sticks to Post.

Howard Hill, the negro elevator boy, took the elevator up and down for seven trips to get the girls out of this building.

Some of the girls who took refuge on the roof were Misses Edith Hausette, Lea Senenfriend, Laura Kahmann and Bessie Whitcomb.

Nellie Vaughn of 4315 College avenue, an employe of Nugents, 19 years old, while running to the fire, was struck by a brewery wagon at Sixth street and Washington avenue. The tongue of the wagon struck her, knocking her down and seriously injuring her. She was attended by physicians at a drug store on the corner.

One girl is said to have escaped by sliding down a water spout. The cashier of one of the companies occupying the building was making up his pay roll when he heard the cry of fire. He climbed to the roof and went down a Ninth street fire escape.

The fire originated in the central section of a seven-story building. But for the fact that this section of the building was embraced within fire walls the damage would have been much greater.

The occupants of the damaged section of the building are the Paul E. Wolf Shirt Co., laundry department; J. E. Epstein, manufacturer of pants; Epstein & Linkey, manufacturers of children's clothing; The Arco Symtem, clothing dealers, and the Metropolitan Hat Co. The first and sixth floors of the building were vacant.

General Alarm Turned In.

A general alarm of fire brought a dozen engines to the scene. Although the fire was under much headway when the department arrived, and the building was full of inflammable material, the fire was brought under control within an hour. Two streams were poured into the top stories of the building from towers on the Washington avenue side, while five streams were played into the same floors from the rear.

The fire gradually crept down the fire escape until it got into the basement. About the time the fire was put out in the upper stories volumes of smoke began to pour from the basement windows.

The stock of goods in the building occupied entirely by the shirt company was slightly damaged by fire. The Belle Hickey Co., occupying the ground floor of the building 823 Washington avenue, was damaged by water and smoke. The upper stories of this building were occupied by the Carleton Clothing Co., the Monarch Waist Co., the Frelich Skirt Co., and F. Weber, dealer in artist supplies. The fire wall saved these concerns from serious damage.

Crowd Troubles Police.

The fire attracted an enormous crowd and the police had a difficult time keeping it back of the danger lines. Capt. Pickel of the North Market Street Station, with a squad of sergeants and patrolmen, was dispatched to the scene to assist the police of Central and Carr Street districts in holding the crowd in check.

RS. WILLIAM ASTOR, ONG SOCIAL LEADER IN NEW YORK IS DEAD

eart Disease er an Illness of Four Weeks.

ESTABLISHED THE 400

Health Failed Last Year and Since Then She Lived in Seclusion.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Mrs. William Astor, for 30 years regarded as the social leader of New York, died last night of heart disease at her home on Fifth avenue. For nearly four weeks Mrs. Astor, who was 82 years old, had been in a critical condition owing to the return of a heart affection that had given her trouble for years.

There is not a name in the social register so well known from one end of the land to the other as was that of Mrs. Astor. Despite her advancing years, she continued to hold her social domination up to a year ago, when failing health compelled her to retire into comparative seclusion.

Broke Down Last Year.

in the summer of 1907 that Mrs. learned of her ill-health. e was abroad last year her son, John Jacob Astor, made the an cement that Beechwood, the summer home of Mrs. Astor at Newport, would not be opened and this led to the discovery that she was in poor health. Word came later from Mrs. Astor, while she was in Paris, saying that she would open her Newport villa after all and would make the season there one of the gayest in years.

This promise was not fulfilled, however, for when she came back from abroad she broke down in Boston and had to return to New York. She had remained at her home ever since.

The society functions given and presided over by Mrs. Astor have gone down into history as among the most brilliant on record. It is said that the ballroom in the mansion on Fifth avenue could accommodate 1000 people.

It was Mrs. Astor who established the famous "400," her visiting list being confined to that number of names. In 1905, however, she was said to have "let down the bars," when she invited 1200 persons to one of the most memorable social events ever given in New York.

Astor Emeralds Famous.

Mrs. Astor received her guests at these gatherings seated in a high-backed chair beneath a portrait of herself painted by Carolus Duran. The Astor jewels were worn by her on these occasions. It is said the Astor emeralds are the finest in the world.

William B. Astor, who died in Paris in 1892, took little part in the social activities his wife enjoyed. Mrs. Astor, before marriage, was Miss Caroline Schermerhorn, a daughter of Abraham Schermerhorn, a well-to-do merchant. She was married to William Astor on Sept. 23, 1853. John Jacob Astor was their only son.

There were four daughters. Two of them, Mrs. Ogilvie Haig and Mrs. Orme Wilson, are living. The eldest daughter, Miss Emily Astor, who married J. J. Van Alen, died some years ago, as did Miss Helen Astor, who married James Roosevelt-Roosevelt.

TEDDY ROOSEVELT JR. DENIES ENGAGEMENT TO MISS MUNN

Declares Story He Is to Wed Washington (D. C.) Girl Is Wholly Untrue.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 31.—"There is absolutely and positively not the slightest foundation in fact for such a report," was the way which Theodore Roosevelt Jr. took emphatically and finally disposing of the report from Washington that he was engaged to marry Miss Carrie A. Munn, daughter of Mrs. Charles A. Munn of Washington, when he was seen at his boarding house in Thompsonville last night.

He had just returned from the carpet factory where he is now working in the worsted room.

Young Roosevelt did not deny that he knew the young lady mentioned, but intimated that that was the extent of his acquaintance with her. He said he liked his new job segregating worsted very much.

'ROUND-THE-WORLD AUTO RACER, HANSEN, MISSING

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The Norwegian Consul-General in New York, Christopher Ravn, has asked assistance in an effort to find the whereabouts of Capt. Hans Hansen, one of the men who took part in the recent automobile race around the world.

Hansen started from New York in the French car, but left it in Chicago and later joined the American car and guided it across Siberia. On his arrival in Paris, much feeling was expressed against him, and he was even threatened, it is said, because of his leaving the French car and assisting the American car to victory.

MURDERER LED BY CONSCIENCE TO SURRENDER

Escaped Convict, After Years of Liberty, Wants to Return to Prison.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—A well-dressed young man who said he was Charles B. Mann, 30 years old, a clerk, walked into police headquarters last night and insisted on surrendering himself as an escaped convict from Dolive Prison, Alabama. He told Detective Howry he shot and killed his brother-in-law, David Dixon, on June 16, 1901, was tried and convicted in Alabama, and sentenced to 15 years in Dolive prison.

On Nov. 11, 1905, he escaped with another "trusty," he said, and came to New York. He afterward went to Europe and South America, where he worked as bookkeeper in various cities and saved money.

Mann said his conscience had troubled him greatly and although he had prospered since his escape from prison, he knew he would be found out some time and was anxious to go back and serve his term. He had formerly been a stenographer and bookkeeper employed by the Government at Washington and was transferred to Alabama, he said.

Mann seemed much relieved when he was told he would be detained at headquarters until word could be sent to the Alabama authorities.

FEDERAL OFFICE HOLDERS ACCUSED OF CAMPAIGNING

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 31.—George I. Neal, vice-chairman of the Democratic State Committee and executive head of the Democratic campaign, sent this telegram today to President Roosevelt complaining of the activity of certain persons in the campaign:

"Federal officeholders in this State are making your position of not permitting pernicious political activity by Federal offices the laughing stock of the State. I especially refer to Frank H. Tyree, Marshal for the Southern District; Charles D. Elliott, Marshall for the Northern District, and George M. Bowers, Fish Commissioner.

McTaggart, Mixed on Question of Identity, Smites Taubert in Saloon.

A sudden blow of a fist on the side of his face rudely disturbed Alvin G. Taubert as he was enjoying a glass of beer in a saloon on Ninth street, between Olive and Pine.

He looked around, rather groggy, and before him stood Edward McTaggart, a contractor, who lives in Webster Groves and has an office in the Benoist Building. Taubert remembered McTaggart as the man, who with Mrs. McTaggart, had caused his arrest last July on a charge of having stolen $1500 worth of diamonds from the wife.

"Again," exclaimed Taubert to himself as he hurried for a policeman. McTaggart was arrested. At Police Headquarters he said: "It was a case of mistaken identity." He repeated that statement Saturday in the Clark Avenue Police Court, and his case was continued until next Friday.

Taubert first came in contact with the McTaggarts July 20, when he was arrested on their complaint at Ninth and Pine streets. At the police station Mrs. McTaggart, who had called him her "cousin," remarked that it was a "case of mistaken identity." Taubert was released.

Husband's Fist This Time.

The second meeting with McTaggart, Friday afternoon, was even more serious for Taubert. McTaggart did not summon a policeman and make charges. Long suppressed wrath in his bosom over the loss of his wife's diamonds rose and overwhelmed him.

He took a quick look at Taubert, then he landed with his right on Taubert's cheek.

Taubert, like McTaggart, is a contractor. At the time he first was taken for Mrs. McTaggart's cousin, he was livinf at 2109 South Jefferson avenue. His home is now at 2708 Armand place. His office is in the Syndicate Trust Building.

Some months ago McTaggart went to Chicago to bring back his wife, she having reported that a cousin, whom she met in that city while there on business, had broken into her trunk and taken all her diamonds.

BRYAN'S FINAL APPEAL URGES REFORM NEEDS

Candidate Compares Promises and Performances of Two Leading Parties.

CHALLENGE FOR TAFT

Calls Attention to Recent Panics Under Republican Administrations.

WINCHESTER, Ind., Oct. 31.—William J. Bryan today issued what is practically his last appeal to the voters this campaign. He summarizes the differences between the Democratic and Republican promises and performances and defends the Democratic plans for the protection of labor and the guaranty of bank deposits. His appeal, addressed to the public, follows:

"As the campaign draws to a close, certain issues stand out clearly. The Democratic party attempts to inaugurate an era of honesty in politics, compelling the publication of campaign contributions before the election. It seeks to bring the Government nearer to the people by the election of United States senators by direct vote. It seeks to restore competition through legislation which will make a private monopoly impossible.

"It seeks to reconcile labor and capital by legislation which will bring employer and employe together in friendly co-operation and to this end it proposes the creation of a department of labor with a secretary of labor in the Cabinet; an amendment to the anti-trust law which will exclude the labor organization from the operation of that law; the limitation of the writ of injunction so that it will not be issued in a labor dispute unless conditions are such as would justify an injunction even if there were no labor dispute, and trial by jury in cases of direct contempt.

Seeks Honesty in Government.

"It seeks to gain legislation which will create a guarantee fund sufficient to insure all bank depositors against loss. It seeks to cause a reduction of the tariff by gradual steps until the tariff laws will no longer be made in the interests of the few and at the expense of the rest of the people.

"The Democratic party, in other words, seeks to secure honesty in Government through honest politics and popular government through direct elections. It desires to insure peace in industry, competition in trade, security to depositors, and justice to taxpayers.

"The Democratic party appeals to the awakened conscience of the nation and the sense of justice in the human heart and to the growing desire for brotherhood.

Will Force Reforms.

"With a Democratic victory for the national ticket, with a Democratic House and with the moral force of a popular verdict, I believe we can compel the Senate to yield to the expressed will of the people and permit the passage of more urgent reforms.

"The Democratic party offers the only prospect of remedial legislation, and while it does not go as far as some reformers would like to go, a Democratic victory will secure as much reform as is now attainable—in fact the only reform that is within reach. We have a right to expect, therefore, the co-operation of those who favor the reforms set forth in our platform.

"The attempt to terrorize the American voter by the threat of a panic will not succeed. We have had three panics in 48 years, the panic of 1873, the panic of 1896 and the panic of 1907, and two of these panics came under a high tariff and each of them came under Republican presidents.

"Mr. Taft says that a panic will come if I am elected. Let him give bond that this panic will go if he is elected. When he says that a Democratic victory will bring a panic he expresses an opinion. When I say that a disastrous panic came last fall without waiting for a Democratic victory, I state a fact that cannot be disputed.

Prosperity on Prominent Basis.

"Our platform presents a plan for the restoration of prosperity upon a permanent basis—a prosperity in which all will share. The Republican party has no plan that contemplates either the present relief or continued welfare of the people.

"The Republican candidate has the prestige that comes from the fact that his party is in power. He has the aid of an army of officeholders; he has the support of all the monopolies and law-defying trusts; he has a large campaign fund, the source of which his committee refuses to disclose, and most of the leading newspapers are allied with him and the interests which he represents.

"I insist that it is not fair for the President to use his office—an office that belongs to all the people—as if it were a party asset or a personal asset and enter actively into the campaign. It offends the sense of justice and ought to arouse a protest from those who believe that in the selection of the chief executive the people should be absolutely free to choose whom they please.

"WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN."

NAY—YOU CAN'T SEE WARFIELD AT POPULAR PRICES!

Kansas City Court Rules That Shuberts' Contract With Belasco Forbids.

News dispatches from Kansas City announce that O. L. Woodward, associated with the Shuberts in the management of the Shubert Theater in that city, has just made an unsuccessful attempt in the courts to compel David Warfield to play at popular prices during his engagement at that house.

Woodward took the matter before a Kansas City court, which ruled, however, that David Belasco's booking contracts with the Shuberts for Warfield and others of his stars stipulated the prices to be charged, that Woodward was not one of the parties to these contracts, and that, therefore, the Shuberts were under contract obligations to charge the high-price scale for Warfield and for the "Warrens of Virginia" engagement, also for the engagements of stars under Harrison Grey Fiske's management, such as Mme. Kalich and Mrs. Fiske.

Similar conditions obtain at the Garrick Theater in St. Louis, which, although charging a downstairs admission price of $1 until now, will next week be under contract obligations to charge $2 per seat for the Kalich engagement, also for Warfield's engagement the following week, for that of "The Warrens of Virginia" in December, and for Mrs. Fiske when she appears in St. Louis.

YOUNG WOMAN THROWN FROM HORSE, KNOCKED SENSELESS

A fall from a saddle horse on the Woodson road, near the Olive Street road, in St. Louis County, rendered Miss Rita Maxon of 4386 Westminster place unconscious for some time. She struck on her head on the road when her horse shied and shook her off.

Miss Louise Simpkins of 3820 Washington boulevard and Miss Edith Morrell of 5272 Westminster place hailed a passing automobile and the chauffeur went for Dr. J. B. Sudduth of Woodson, who gave Miss Maxon temporary treatment. Later her brother-in-law, Dr. W. A. Shoemaker, and Dr. M. B. Clopton arrived in an auto and removed her to the Sarpel Stock Farm near Clayton, where she spent the night.

Miss Maxon's injuries consisted only of painful bruises, but the shock of the fall stunned her. She is known as an expert equestrienne.

CRY OF "FIRE" STARTLES CROWD AT HORSE SHOW

Explosion of Flashlight Powder Causes Small Blazes, Quickly Extinguished.

If the flashlight photographer who made a photograph of the audience at the Horse Show last night could have made a second snap a few minutes later he would have had a picture with much more action in it. His plate would have shown several hundred startled faces and the scurrying forms of men and women startled by a cry of fire.

Canvas cubes of muslin containing the flashlight powder had been suspended from the girders under the balcony. Several of them were ignited when the highly inflammable powder was exploded. An excited man in the audience yelled "Fire" and a few persons left the Coliseum, which is fireproof.

One of the fragments of muslin hung near a large American flag over the center of the arena. James Kane, a city fireman, crawled along a narrow beam 50 feet above the ground and extinguished the fire, preventing the flag from being ignited.

Louis V. Hetzel of 607 Locust street saw Kane save the flag and was so impressed by the fireman's nerve that he telephoned to the Post-Dispatch Saturday that he will send to Kane a check for $5.

AERONAUTS TAKE AUTO WITH THEM IN FLIGHT IN BALLOON

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 31.—Something new in aeronautics was attempted here yesterday, when a balloon with a capacity of 110,000 cubic feet of gas shot up into the air with an automobile in the place where a basket is usually suspended. The balloon carried Carl G. Fisher of Indianapolis and C. L. Bumbaugh of Springfield, Ill.

The idea of the aeronauts was to be able at will to roll up the balloon, load it in the automobile and return to the starting place.

The balloon descended near the Southport, seven miles from Indianapolis, after being in the air two hours and ten minutes. The automobile was freed from the balloon and Bumbaugh and Fisher came back in it.

CANDIDATE FOR LEGISLATURE IS A LAW BREAKER

a "gang" candidate for Circuit Judge, 1546.

The Miles-Brennan-Butler combination made no secret of its friendship for "Fish" McAdams. Two days before the primary they ordered every Democratic leader to go the limit for his candidacy.

When a Democratic candidate for another office pleaded with them not to nominate McAdams on the ground that his odious police record might endanger the success of the entire Democratic ticket, the gang laughed and said:

"To h— with de public. We won't t'row down Fish for noboby."

There was danger at one time that the Fifth Ward might prove hostile to McAdams' candidacy, also the Fourth Ward. Paddy O'Donnell leads the Democratic forces in the Fifth.

He was instructed to let McAdams have the complete Democratic vote of that ward. "All right," said O'Donnell. And he did. In that bailiwick Fish led the other Democratic candidates by 150 votes. He also led the Democratic ticket in the Sixth, Fifteenth and Twenty-second wards, although two young men well-qualified for legislative honors were opposing his nomination.

In the language of the "gang," "Fish is a prince." "De only ting we regret," said one of his friends Saturday, "is dat he killed his good pal, Steve (Cackey) McCormack. Dat was in May, 1900, at Tenth and Mullanphy streets. We was all cannin' up and 'Cackey' he says somet'in' to Fish and den dey fight. Say, it was awful. 'Fish' pulled a gun and shot 'Cackey' dead. No, he wasn't punished. It was a case of self-defense and de judge turned him loose."

McAdams is known to the police as an associate of "Red" Gebe, Tommy Holden, Benny Horracks and other prominent police characters.

In company with Holden he robbed a man named Ewald, June 7, 1893, and was sentenced to the Workhouse for four months.

Since then Gebe has served a term in the Penitentiary; Horracks was defeated for the Democratic nomination for the Legislature in the Sixth District, and Holden is serving a six-year term in the Sing Sing Penitentiary, New York.

FOLK'S NAME IS HISSED AT COWHERD RALLY

"He's a Hypocrite," Shouts Man When Governor's Name Is Mentioned.

HALL IS OVERFLOWED

Democratic Nominee Quotes Roosevelt Against City Control of Police.

COWHERD ON HOME RULE AT ODEON

MR. HADLEY challenges my position upon home rule. I denounce his. The great cities of the country, with but one exception, as I recollect it, stand by the metropolitan system, and the President of the United States, who has had experience as an officer of police, has given his testimony against home rule in the police force of a city. The police of this great city are a part of the military arm of the State. It is their business to enforce alike the laws of State and city, their duty to see that life is safe and property secure.

Which would the citizens of St. Louis prefer, a police force controlled by a board appointed by their Governor, or by one selected by the City Council? If selected by the Council, the House of Delegates would hold the purse strings, and the power that holds the purse strings will control the force.

When I am elected Governor I shall appoint police commissioners whose character and standing in this community are the best guarantee of an honest and upright administration. I shall appoint as election commissioners the best business men I can find—men who will give every voter the right to cast an honest ballot, and see that it is fairly counted.

Gov. Folk's name was hissed by persons in the audience at the Democratic demonstration at the Odeon, addressed Friday night by William S. Cowherd, candidate for Governor. The hissing occurred just after David R. Francis had declared that he had never voted for a Democratic Governor who could fill the office with greater credit than Mr. Cowherd.

"How about Folk?" shouted someone in the audience.

Hisses were heard as Gov. Francis replied that Gov. Folk was not excepted, and that he had been a credit to his party and his State.

"He's a hypocrite," was the answer shouted back at this. The interrupter was seated near Judge Hickman P. Rodgers, one of Gov. Folk's friends.

Big Hall Crowded.

A crowd that occupied every inch of space in the Odeon greeted the Democratic candidate. There was an overflow meeting at Hibernian Hall, but many forced their way into the corridors and struggled to get into the main hall.

Mayor Wells, John D. Davis, James M. Franciscus and Morton Jourdan were among the occupants of boxes.

Two hundred vice-presidents occupied seats on the stage. Judge O'Neil Ryan presided. An ovation was extended to Gov. Francis. He spoke for an hour, predicting Democratic victory.

At the opening of the meeting persons in the rear of the audience persisted in shouting "Hurrah for Harry Walsh," and "Hurrah for Stone," but after Judge Ryan started to speak this ceased.

Party's Life at Stake.

Gov. Francis predicted that, if the Republicans win two or three more victories, the Democratic party will pass out of existence and the Socialist party will take its place. He spoke feelingly of his own return to the party after fighting Bryan in 1896 and 1900. He said the control of the party has again passed to the conservative element.

Mr. Cowherd opened his address by an attack on his Republican opponent, Herbert S. Hadley, and a little later savagely assailed Circuit Attorney Sager in connection with the election fraud investigations. He declared Hadley had abandoned his party platform.

"What do you think," he said, "of a candidate who abandons his party and waves the dirty rag of primary fraud here in St. Louis?

"I'll not haul down the flag my party gave me, but I'll stand by it and turn it back four years hence as spotless as it was when it was committed to my care.

Frauds on Both Sides.

"Frauds, if committed in St. Louis, were equally divided between myself and my leading opponent. I carried all the clean wards of the city, and the vote of St. Louis may be disregarded, and I am still the nominee of the Democratic party.

"My public record has been searched in vain for some blemish, but the only cry that my opponents raise is that I was supported by good and honest Democrats. He asks me do I indorse this man and that man who supported me.

"I answer that by asking Mr. Hadley if he indorses Jesse A. Tolerton, Republican candidate for State Auditor, who was indicted, convicted and escaped punishment on a technicality, for speculating in county warrants.

"He asks me, do I indorse former Democratic administrations, and I have no hesitancy in answering that I do.

Quotes State History.

"He asks me what the Democratic party has done for Missouri.

"I answer it has made Missouri the first State in all the West. It took control of her destinies when she was a [illegible] and holds her today a Paradise. It has handled a hundred million of the people's money, and never a cent has been lost to the treasury of the Sate. It has built up our great eleemosynary institutions, second to none in the land; has reduced her tax rate from 50 to 17 cents, and, while reducing it, not only maintained every duty and obligation of statehood, but paid off that $21,000,000 of indebtedness, the only monument left us from six years of Republican misrule.

"When I contrast this glorious record with the history of his party in Missouri, he says I am going to the graveyard of the past to find an issue for the campaign. I challenge him to find in the story of any State in all the Union a party that has held that State so long as the Democracy has ruled Missouri and made so fair a record. No Archbolds are writing letters to our officers, no judges in Missouri owe their appointment to the greasy influence of Standard Oil."

Calls for Hadley's Record.

"Mr. Hadley says that when Gov. Dockery was in office the police of Kansas City were dishonest—that they were partners in every form of graft and crime. If this was true, I challenge any friends of Hadley's to show on the record where any policemen were indicted and prosecuted during the two years that Mr. Hadley served as prosecuting attorney of Kansas City during the Dockery administration. He either betrayed his trust then, or he slanders Missouri now."

Mr. Cowherd assailed Circuit Attorney Sager for sending registered letters to names that appear on the registration books—names for whom the police have been able to find no corresponding person. He declared that while he stood for honesty in elections, the threat of Mr. Sager to return indictments in these case was "intimidation."

"The public official who seeks to intimidate honest voters does a wrong greater than the thief who casts a fraudulent ballot," he said. "Mr. Sager's methods are contemptible, for he is trying to intimidate honest voters."

Toward the close of Mr. Cowherd's address many persons got up and left the hall. He held a brief reception on the stage at the close of his address, then spoke a few minutes at the overflow meeting, and later at a Fourth Ward meeting. He left St. Louis for Kansas City on a midnight train.

ELOPING GIRLS REFUSES TO COME HERE FROM ARKANSAS

Her Brother-in-Law, Charged With Bigamy in Marrying Her, Is Not Found.

The police of Little Rock, Ark., have been unable to induce Mrs. Lulu Margerum, the 17-year-old St. Louis girl who is said to have eloped with her sister's husband, John Margerum, to return home. A telegram received by the St. Louis police states that she refuses to come to St. Louis, and that John Margerum, who is wanted here on a bigamy charge, cannot be found.

Mrs. John S. Moore of 4855 Greer avenue, swore out a warrant charging her son-in-law, Margerum, with bigamy. She stated that he married her daughter Laura in Savannah, Ga., four years ago, and that although he filed a suit for divorce he did not succeed in obtaining a legal separation. She was not aware that he was courting her second daughter, she said, until she saw the publication of a marriage license issued to them. Investigation showed that Margerum and Lulu Moore had gone through a marriage ceremony and had left St. Louis for Little Rock.

FRANKFURTERS AID DIVORCE OF POPULAR WIFE

Woman Who Won Prize in Belleville Contest Cooked Sausages Too Slowly.

Breaking dishes, throwing hot frankfurters on the floor and hitting her on the arm with a china cup, are some of the things Mrs. Emily Taylor of Belleville charged her husband with having done in her testimony in the Circuit Court at Belleville. Mrs. Taylor recently won a diamond ring in a popularity contest. A few days later she sued George Taylor for divorce, alleging cruelty.

Mrs. Taylor testified that a number of times her husband had struck her and told of the time he threw frankfurters on the floor because she did not cook them fast enough. The divorce was granted.

Charles A. Gorton testified that he lost his household goods and wife the same night in Kansas City. The house in which he was living burned on the night of Feb. 22, 1905, and his wife, Olive, left him the same time. He was granted a divorce on the grounds of desertion.

Other Divorces Granted.

Judge Moore granted a divorce to Emma Davis from William Davis for cruelty. She was awarded the custody of the children and $10 a month alimony. Davis has the privilege of visiting the children every Sunday.

Sarah Gibbons got a divorce from John Gibbons on the grounds of intoxication. She was awarded the children and $10 a month alimony. Myrtle Heisman received a decree from Joseph Heisman for cruelty. George Beeson was given a divorce from Mary Beeson for desertion, and Vivian Kisselbach proved the same offense in her suit against Paul Kisselbach.

After spending two days listening to nothing but divorce cases, Judge Moore adjourned court until next Wednesday.

TURKISH SOLDIERS MUTINY, THREE KILLED, 15 INJURED

Outbreak of Part of Company Defending Garrison Promptly Put Down.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 31.—A threatened outbreak on the part of a company of Turkish troops attached to the garrison at Yildiz Kiosk was promptly put down this morning with a single volley from a loyal battalion.

Three of the mutineers were killed and 15 injured.

The mutinous spirit manifested itself when the company was assembled, and looked for a few moments as though it would result in serious trouble.

A battalion from a regiment recently brought in from Saloniki was marched to the scene and one volley sufficed to cow the mutineers.

ROCKEFELLER IS ISHMAELITE OF THE CAMPAIGN

Tries to Climb Into Taft Band Wagon and Is Rudely Repulsed.

Poor old John Rockefeller. Nobody wants him. He's like the little boy in the song "Always in the Way."

The Democratic donkey has bucked him out of the saddle and now the Republican elephant is trying to shake him off.

President Roosevelt has added him to his famous revised list of undesirables, and in a statement issued from the White House he hints that the Oil King is eligible to membership in the Ananias Club.

Everywhere he tries to land on the political field he finds somebody waiting with a pitchfork to puncture his balloon and chase over into the next county.

Taft spurns him. Bryan defies him. Manifestly he can't consistently vote for Hisgen, sworn enemy to Standard Oil, or for Debs, arch foe of billionaires.

Might Vote at Benbow.

There is one chance left to him. He might come to Benbow City, the Standard Oil flat town across the river, and cast the only vote there for Chafin, the Prohibition candidate.

His announcement that he will vote for Taft has caused a groundswell extending all the way from Lincoln, Neb., to Washington and back again.

"Aha," says Bryan. "I told you so. That shows which party is friendly to predatory wealth. Rockefeller is for Taft. Therefore Taft is for Rockefeller."

"No, no, a thousand times no," says Mr. Taft. "He can't play in my yard."

In a speech at Buffalo, N. Y., Friday night, the Republican candidate for President became almost eloquent as he thundered: "If the Standard Oil Co. were anxious to bring about my election I should take it that the last thing it would do would be to advocate its support of me."

White House Won't Have Him.

After burning the midnight oil at the White House in conference with War Secretary Wright and Solicitor-General Hoyt the President authorized the issuance of this statement:

"At the White House the announcement of Mr. Rockefeller, through the press agent of the Standard Oil Co., was regarded with some amusement in view of what the administration has done to the Standard Oil Co. and of the bitter hatred borne by the Standard Oil Co. to the administration. It is a perfectly palpable and obvious trick on the part of the Standard Oil people to try to damage Taft—a trick so palpable that it can deceive no one."

Even John W. Kern, Democratic candidate for Vice-President, is worried about it. He views with alarm this effort to discredit the Democracy by making it appear that Rockefeller is its friend.

No, nobody wants John D.

Gee! Isn't it a short, ugly, Jo Uncle word to be rich?

WOMAN'S HAIR TURNS WHITE AFTER INJURY; GETS $17,500

Expression of Face Completely Changed After She Was Hit by Trolley Pole.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—In one day after a broken trolley pole fell on the head of Mrs. Julia Konold, her hair, naturally a chestnut brown, was turned completely white and the expression of her face changed from the bloom of middle age to that of a woman 15 years her senior.

The accident occurred on Dec. 31, 1904. In Judge Tuthill's court yesterday a verdict for $17,500 was rendered in her favor against the Union Traction Co., owner of the line on which she was injured.

The verdict is one of the largest ever returned in favor of a woman in a personal injury case in the history of Chicago.

NEAR DEATH, GIRL ACCUSES WOMAN OF AN OPERATION

Freda Hurtig, 24, Names Mrs. Sarah Callahan With Last Breath.

POLICE KNOW MAN, TOO

Home of Woman Who Disappeared Following Deathbed Confession Watched.

On the strength of an ante-mortem affidavit made by Miss Freda Hurtig, 24 years old, of 4159 Humphrey street, the police of the Manchester Avenue District have been instructed to arrest Mrs. Sarah Callahan, known as Mrs. Nellie Smith, who lives at 3006 Olive street.

Miss Hurtig died at St. Anthony's Hospital Friday afternoon. In her affidavit and in her statement to Dr. H. A. Upshaw she said that an operation had been performed on her by Mrs. Callahan.

Police sent to arrest Mrs. Callahan have been unable to find her. A detail has been stationed at her home to take her in custody if she returns.

Miss Hurtig was employed in a downtown manufactory of women's wearing apparel. In her statement she mentioned the name of a young man.

She stated that she went to Mrs. Callahan Oct. 17, Oct. 20 and Oct. 23.

After the last visit she became ill at her home and Dr. Upshaw was called to attend her. When she told him what had occurred he advised that she be taken to the hospital.

The second-floor flat, which was occupied by Mrs. Callahan, another woman and a man, is deserted. Neighbors say that Mrs. Callahan has not been there for a week and that the others left there Friday.

Visited by Many Girls.

The large number of young women who visited the flat was a matter of comment in the neighborhood.

Three weeks ago a man went there carrying a baby. There was no one at home, and he insisted on leaving the baby at a store on the first floor. After much parleying he was induced to take the baby away with him. He said he had been told to give the child to Mrs. Callahan.

Several months ago Lawler Daly, Democratic politician, took a woman in custody when he saw her attempting to abandon a baby at Twenty-eighth and Olive streets.

In court she pathetically pleaded that she was Mrs. Nellie Smith, and that she had no means to care for her child. Since her acquittal the police have learned that this woman was Mrs. Callahan. Her home has been under surveillance for several weeks.

QUARRYMAN WHOSE HEAD WAS CRUSHED BY STONE WILL LIVE

Seventy-Eight Persons in Radius of Quarry District Want Blasting Stopped.

John Birmingham, foreman of the quarries of the Heman Construction Co. at Windom, St. Louis County, was almost killed Friday by a big stone from a blast that fell upon his head and crushed a part of his skull. He is in the Mullanphy Hospital and it is expected he will recover.

Three years ago a blast killed two men who were working with him and injured him so that the fingers on both hands had to be amputated.

Seventy-eight persons who live within the radius of stone showers from blasts in quarries at the foot of Osceola and Wyandotte streets have joined together to begin injunction proceedings in court against the quarry companies in an effort to stop the blasting. These quarries are owned by F. N. Simmons and the Hoffman-Hogan Construction Co.

Dorothy Rose was killed Thursday by a rock that fell from a blast there and many have had narrow escapes.

MANICURE WHO CAUSED ARREST OF MAN TO WHOM SHE LOANED RINGS

MISS GRACE HORSEFIELD.

YOUTH'S ARREST RESTORES RINGS TO MANICURIST

Girl Satisfied When Rosenburg Hands Over Diamonds at Four Courts.

Lee Rosenburg of 5932 Julian avenue was arrested on complaint of Miss Grace Horsefield of 3894 Windsor place, as he stepped from a barber shop on Newstead avenue, near Windsor place. The young lady, who is a manicurist in a downtown barber shop, accused Rosenburg of retaining several diamond rings belonging to her.

Miss Horsefield stated that Rosenburg had taken the diamond rings to have them reset, but that she grew anxious about them. Rosenburg was not detained, but promised to be at the office of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Falkenhainer in the afternoon. He was there, and after he had handed the rings to Mr. Falkenhainer, Miss Horsefield said she was satisfied.

Rosenburg told the policeman that he had taken the rings from Miss Horsefield, with her consent, to have the diamonds reset, and had done so. The night before he was arrested he telephoned to her that he would call on her and bring the rings. She told him, he says, not to call then, as she was going to the Horse Show.

The following morning, Thursday, he said, he was on the way to her house with the rings and stopped at the barber shop to be shaved before going to her house, which was around the corner. She saw him enter the shop and waited with a policeman on the sidewalk until he came out.

It was reported that the rings had been in pawn, but Rosenburg told the Assistant Prosecuting Attorney that such was not the case.

BATHTUB DEATH DISPUTE BRINGS CORONER'S PROBE

Wife Says Husband Died of Heart Disease, Doctor Says Asphyxiation.

Whether Harry W. Sandborn, an official of the Electrical Workers' Union, died of heart disease, as his wife believes, or from asphyxiation by gas, as Dr. R. M. Horwitz thinks, will be the subject of an investigation by the Coroner, who will hold an inquest Monday.

Sandborn was deeply interested in a bill before the House of Delegates providing for municipal inspection of all electric wiring. Mrs. Sandborn says that his heart had been weak for some time and that worry over the proposed legislation had aggravated this condition.

He was found in the bathtub of his home at 5736½ Cote Brilliante avenue at 5 p. m. Friday a few minutes after he had told his wife that he was going to prepare to attend a meeting of the House of Delegates.

Half an hour later his son, Orville, 8 years old, went to the bathroom. He saw his father unclothed in the tub. The water was running, but the plug was not in place. Failing to arouse his father, he called his mother.

Dead When She Entered.

Mrs. Sandborn says her husband was dead when she entered the room. The gas water heater was burning a few feet from the tub. She turned it off, but thinks that in her excitement she may have turned it on again.

Dr. Horwitz, who was passing the house, saw Orville crying and heard him say: "My papa died in the bathroom." He entered.

The physician says that when he reached the bathroom the odor of gas was so strong that he was almost overcome. He examined the body and expressed the opinion that death was due to asphyxiation.

Sandborn had three other children besides Orville. They are Ruby, 15; Warren 13 and Helen, 10.

The inspection bill which had excited Sandborn did not come up at Friday night's meeting of the House of Delegates.

"SHALL THE PEOPLE RULE?"

During the last four years and the last six years, Democracy in Missouri has meant more for good government in the State and out of it than during 20 years of Civil War politics.

It has meant the use by Missouri Democrats of their own minds in enforcing their own ideas of the difference between right and wrong in public life, in law enforcement, in everything which makes the difference between the best government and the worst.

The Post-Dispatch has never said that this is the work of any one man or of any score of men. As from its beginnings in Missouri, it has extended its influences to the country, it is the work of Democracy. It is, in fact, the Democracy of the best popular government. Anything short of it is not and cannot be Democratic in principle or in method.

Avoiding any attempt at excessive zeal, the Post-Dispatch has attempted to keep uppermost in the minds of Missouri Democrats and of all who have the Democratic impulse, the importance of going forward and not back in this work of Democratic government.

To find the men who represent this movement and use them to keep it moving; to find those who oppose it that they may be rejected as unrepresentative and dangerous to Democratic advance—this the Post-Dispatch has urged as the matter of the highest importance.

Is anything more important than this use of the intellect every man has that he may use it thus for himself, on his own responsibility, to express his own judgment of right? "Shall the people rule?" How can they rule, if they do not do it in this way?

As a proof of its absolute sincerity and independence, our esteemed contemporary, the Times, has indorsed the entire Republican ticket, from top to bottom. Not content with this signal proof of sincere independence, it linked with Herbert S. Hadley, as a twin model of political purity, fidelity to public interests and progressive reform, as a popular idol and companion piece in the Statesman's Hall of Fame, Col. Richard Kerens. To conclude, "after weeks of careful consideration," that the public welfare demands, with the election of Hadley, as the representative of "good government, involving progressive reform," the election of Kerens as "senatorial material of the finest possible character" is a stroke of independent genius. To combine in one independent reform ticket the friend of the people with the partner of plutocrats, the foe of corruption with the slush-fund provider, the champion of political purity with the money bag—"Trust-Buster" Hadley and "Star Route" Dick—is a marvel of unctuous sincerity. This delicate blending of hyperion and the satyr, of the puritan and the pirate, is charming—simplicity joined with ingenuity. Rude persons may suggest that Col. Kerens' ownership of the Times—perish the thought!

WHAT THEY REPRESENT.

Senator Aldrich, in fine indignation, denounces the one Democratic Congressman from his State because he does not represent the interests of Rhode Island.

It is to laugh. What does Senator Aldrich represent in the United States Senate, where he has sat for many years as the representative of the same little rotten borough?

Senators who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones. When a Standard Oil Senator or a Harriman Senator or the many senators who are known by adjectives drawn from other special interests grow angry because another Senator or a member of the House does not represent his State, it brings to mind the devil rebuking sin.

Suppose the House of Delegates should meet and say, "All right! By Gosh, we'll pass those railroad crossings bills this very night!"

Suppose the House should meet tonight and, just to show good will, should pass that old Public Utilities Commission bill.

And while it was about it, just suppose that it would pass a measure making possible that longed-for natural gas——

Well, what would old St. Louis do when it got out of bed next morn and read the startling news? St. Louis would drop dead.

BUSINESS THAT IS BUSINESS.

The outside cover of one of the November magazines displays a sentence attributed to Mr. John Davison Rockefeller. It introduces him as a teacher of ethics, supporting the proposition that it is "despicable and pathetic" to find any man giving his waking hours to money getting, merely for its own sake.

It will be observed that this makes his money getting in business depend on what he himself intends to do with the money outside of business. In that light, the use he has decided to make of it, or thinks he may make of it, after he has got it, may convert what is despicable and pathetic into what is noble and admirable.

That view is wholly mistaken in political economy. It is also erroneous in law. Whatever "ethics" are or are to be, those who teach them must revise them until they conform to law.

In political economy, which is only another name for plain business on plain business principles, the question when a man gets money is that of how he gets it and what he gives for it. If he gives lawful value for lawful value, giving those whose money he gets what they need worse than the money they give for it, he is not despicable in working ten hours or twelve hours a day if he chooses. He is doing good service to those whose money he gets and is earning the money by giving them good service, as they are free to bargain with him for it. If he takes away their right of bargain and takes their money as he pleases, on the theory that he has a nobler use for it than they have, then he is despicable, and if they cannot help it, they are pathetic. "A fair exchange is no robbery," but that is not a fair exchange. It markets such motives as values exchangeable for other people's cash.

In business that is business, the motives of a man who is earning his money are nobody's business but his own. In business that is business, when he displays high and noble motives in the market as an excuse for doing something that would be despicable and pathetic except for them, business, if he succeeds in taking solid values for the mere motives, must refer his methods and his motives to the law.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

A Political Straw.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I am a Republican and had intended voting the Republican ticket as usual, but since reading that Messrs. Carnegie and Rockefeller are both out for Mr. Taft I begin to see the light. It is a safe bet that if these two great trust magnates are for Taft that all the lesser trusts in the country are for him also. In consideration of these facts I shall vote for Mr. Bryan and urge all my friends to do the same. This is all the evidence I want that Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt have been deceiving the people and never had any intention of curbing the trusts in this country. I urge every Republican in the City of St. Louis to vote for Mr. Bryan. J. J. HAMILTON.

Men Who Do Not Know.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Following your advice, I am going to scratch the Democratic ticket. Any man who has no fixed idea either for or against the utilities bill is no fit candidate for Councilman and any man opposed to public regulation of public utilities presumes upon the patience of the people to allow himself to be a candidate for Councilman. NONFEALTY DEMOCRAT.

Hard Hours for Election Officials.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have learned recently to my surprise that judges and clerks of election, who occupy responsible positions, usually working 13 hours per day and on election day there is no limit till everything is done; that sometimes 20 hours' work is required on election day. Moreover, no judge or clerk of election is allowed to absent himself from the polling place for more than five minutes, which means practically no time even for meals. Now, what opinion can any sound man have of such an employer? I hope that the Board of Election Commissioners will see that justice is done to judges and clerks of election; that overtime (one and one-half) be paid over the eight-hour limit and that meals should also be provided on election day for the election officials.

PHILIP SMITH, 1311 Biddle street.

Why I Shall Vote for Bryan.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

At the beginning of the panic, on my trip West and Southwest, a year ago, salesmen were offering New York drafts and St. Louis checks for from $5 to $10 loss to get cash. In hotels no cash could be obtained and traveling men were held up unless they had customers that would cash their checks. All the boys know this as a fact and if they left money at home in the banks and wanted a draft from their wives it was impossible to get it unless some obliging grocer or saloon man would cash it. This, under a high-tariff administration, with the Roosevelt policies thrown in, with large majorities Republican in both houses. Washington avenue traveling men were called in and many of them laid off. They had worked hard for several years prior to this, but when the slump came their services were not required. This is not an exception, but throughout New York and Pennsylvania and Illinois the same thing occurred; it is not new, the boys all know it; yet these same merchants are now howling to support Roosevelt policies and an attempt is being made to coerce traveling men to support their views. It is nobody's business how you vote, but don't forget what the past has been and who caused it.

I have never voted for Bryan, but shall do so on Nov. 3. I am not a hero worshiper of any man, but my study of politics has brought me to this conclusion: That in the interest of good government it is necessary imperialism must be stopped in this country. It is sapping the lifeblood of the nation. The former simple lives of our officeholders have been supplanted by a reckless, spendthrift class, helping to produce failures in banks and other institutions and men's lives. Also poverty and death caused by closing down of mills, worse than it has been for years. In 1893 or 1894 cannot be compared at all. The full dinner pail has been empty for a year; cars idle on the tracks, yards full of dead engines, mines closed down. Here in St. Louis the workingmen and traveling men know the story too well. Our imports and exports for the year, or take the month of August for 1907 and 1908 and the difference is seen; the rot published by some papers here is absurd. Lord Byron sang "hereditary bondsmen know ye not who would be free, themselves must strike the blow." Men, cast your vote on Tuesday next, do not mind what the "bosses" say, vote against Roosevelt and his dummy.

WASHINGTON AVENUE DRUMMER.

A JOB FOR ROCKEFELLER.

C. E. Russell in Everybody's.

The principal lack in our municipal affairs is not so much a lack of honesty as of organization. In all our great cities, but particularly in New York, there is no discernible plan about any known thing, but we get on by sheer main strength and stupidity. Suppose we could utilize the talent for organization that Mr. Rockefeller possesses, or Mr. Carnegie. Nobody has ever stolen much from Mr. Rockefeller; he organized a system to prevent stealing. Nobody has wasted much of his time, and no part of the work he wanted to have done has been spoiled for want of coherency and design. He has never allowed anything to go to waste about his shop, and his enterprises have never been incumbered with useless material and useless men.

CUSTOMARY.

From the Washington Herald.

"Mr. Taft was treated with distinguished consideration during his speaking tour in the South," says the Baltimore American. Sure; it's a little way the South has. After another thousand or so of our public men have visited Dixie, that may come to be taken as a matter of course, we suppose, rather than a subject for comment.

AS TO PILOTS.

A World correspondent writes that "the Republican party may have erred at times, but it has always selected the most able men to pilot this great old ship of State."

We have not fault to find with Republican pilots. They are a fine body of able seamen. Our quarrel is with the ship owners who set the course for them.

The box warmers in the Bald Knob store were talking about automobiles.

"I rode in one the last time I was in St. Louis," said Mr. Antwine.

"How far'd ye go?"

"About ten miles. We went out to a roadhouse about that far from town an' had dinner."

"That'd make 20 miles, wouldn't it, Antwine?" asked the storekeeper.

"Yep," the old man answered, "it would have made 20 miles, but I walked back."

"How was that?"

The village tourist filled his pipe and told them a little story.

"You see," he said, "when you go out automobiling with a fellow, he furnishes the car an' the gasoline, an' you're supposed to pay the rest. I didn't know that when I was invited to go, but I found it out when the waiter come aroun' to collect fer the dinner.

"'It's on you, Antwine,' said my city friend. 'It's the custom.'

"'You don' say!' says I.

"'Yep,' says he, 'I hate to do it, but when you're in Rome you've got to be a Roman.'

"'All right,' says I, diggin' up $3.30. 'Now,' says I, 'you run the machine back, an' I'll follow along behin' to see you don' lose nothin'.'

"'Pshaw!' he says, 'you ain' mad?'

"'Mad nothin',' says I. 'I've got a better reason 'n that. An' I did have, too."

They were all silent a moment.

"What was your reason?" the storekeeper finally asked.

"By gad," Antwine answered, "I only had $18 left, an' I was afeerd he might be arrested fer speedin'."

OCTOBER 31.

Only three days now till labor,
Steadfast still, but thin and pale,
Puts its vote with some misgivings
In the empty dinner pail.

About all there is running against Mr. Bartholdt this time is that hoch-der-booze speech he made last spring on the floor of the House.

TOMORROW.

TOMORROW I shall steal away
From all the tumult of the times
And spend a sweet and quiet day
Where Pan intones his music-rhymes
Upon whatever passing wind
May be for melody to float,
And there I shall make up my mind
Which ticket I am going to vote.

The forest and the songs of birds
Shall give me rest in some deep glen
From passion and the shouted words
Of faith and its excited men.
And in that haven of my own
Where waiting Reason firmly sits
Her soothing and bucolic throne,
I shall collect my scattered wits.

The brooding wood shall girt me round,
And Pan shall pipe the softest air
That ever deepened the profound
Domain of quiet anywhere.
And friends shall press their finger-tips—
The squirrel and the bobolink—
Against their sealed and silent lips
And whisper, "'Sh!—he wants to think."

And there the sere and dying leaves
Shall sigh their memories of youth,
And what no combatant perceives
Shall I discover in the truth
With luring there each timid doubt
And bidding Reason throw her light
Upon our tryst till I make out
Which party's candidate is right.

Col. W. H. Chase of St. Louis said in a speech at De Soto last night that his company has 19 Texas orders to be cancelled if Taft is defeated. They are probably for horns.

That reform in any field of endeavor does give the little fellows a chance is abundantly proven by what some of the little colleges are doing to the big ones in football.

J. C. W.—As owner of chickens is required to keep them on his premises, a pigeon owner should be required to confine his pigeons. The pigeons in a city are a filthy nuisance and there ought to be a special ordinance against them. If they roost on your roof or gutters at night go up with a long pole and scare them off; they will never return. Or you might try imitation cats to frighten them away.

M. J. L.—The name "Golden gate" first appears in the "Geographical Memoir of California" and its relative map, published by Colonel Fremont in the spring of 1848. The term was descriptive not of the literal golden regions within, then as yet undiscovered, but merely of the rich and fertile country which surrounded the shores of the bay, and of the wealth which the commerce of the Pacific, passing through the strait, would certainly give to the future great city of the place. The name was probably suggested by the Golden horn of Constantinople.

W. K.—Who discovered America? Bjarne Herjulfson is credited with having reached America in 986; Leif, son of Eric the Red, seems to have reached this Continent in 1000; the Welsh state that Madoc, their prince, came here in 1170. The Book of Mormon "reveals" to Smith that Nephi or somebody else led the Mormons to America at an early period in a marvelous rolling boat. Anticipating Christopher Columbus by a thousand years and more, the Buddhist missionaries in 499 discovered east of China a big island with an estimated breadth of 6000 miles between Atlantic and Pacific and distant 2000 miles from the Asiatic mainland. This definition of America, to which was given the name "Fusang," after the agave tree of Mexico, was promoted doubtless by the route that led these "wise men of the East" to Alaska from Kamchatka by the Kurile and Aleutian Islands, and then south to the Pacific Coast into California and Mexico, in which last State, the climate and the natives pleased them, they finally established their headquarters. That Buddhist missionaries forestalled the big event of 1492 seems probable enough. Spaniards who first had contact with Mexico found in her architecture, arts and the science regulating time a strong resemblance to Oriental practices. Especially the forms of Buddhism prevailed. The Greeks discovered America. They were the first to discover it so far as record of history goes. Long before Leif Ericsson, the hardy Norseman, sailed with his vikings across the North Atlantic; long before the days of the Irish St. Brendan, or the Welsh Madoc, the Greeks discovered the [illegible]

CANDID REVIEWS of The NEWEST BOOKS

Carefully Prepared Especially for the Post-Dispatch.

IN "The Heart of Kentucky," Mrs. H. D. Pittman, a St. Louis woman who achieved success with her first novel, "The Belle of the Bluegrass Country," tells a strongly dramatic story of antebellum days, the story also voicing a defense of the "unwritten law." Its hero, Wallace Darrall, kills a man in defense of his wife's honor and is sentenced to death in despite of the strenuous Kentucky public sentiment demanding his acquittal. He and his wife commit suicide, dying in each other's arms.

Darrall left a statement which was published and quickly suppressed. "But the contents became known, and, since that time, no court of justice in the State has ever adjudged guilty a vindicator of the 'unwritten law.' In clear, unmistaken tones, 'the heart of Kentucky' had spoken."

The novel is founded on historic fact and Mrs. Pittman makes picturesque use of the material at hand. She is especially good in drawing Southern characters of the "old regime" and in depicting the comedy character of earlier days. (Neal Pub. Co.)

THERE is a sober genius that puts forth its important and expected novels with mechanical punctuality, and there is a mischievous genius that produces an occasional book as delightful as it is unexpected and unimportant. Such a book is "The One and I," a journal of English colonial life in the extreme Canadian Northwest by Elizabeth Freemantle. Its naturalness and quaint humor recall "Hazel of Heatherland," which the cognoscenti made some to-do about three years ago. Miss Fremantle did not write the diary of Hazel, but that of "I" is quite enough to win her the admiration of a great many readers. "I" is a girl in that big and new country. She lives in a town some place between Winnepeg and Vancouver. She has a very picturesque admirer in a ranch west of her home. This is "The One." Her old father is "The Pippin," and other characters in this droll little comedy of colonial life are "The Sidar," "Jack-Thump-on-the-Barrel," and "The Linnet." "I" is about the sprightliest character you have met in years. And how you do see that beautiful big country through her eyes—and feel through her heart the contrast between their old life of comfort in England and their new life west of Winnepeg! How the pasque flowers blow on its pages—how human they all are—what a captain is "I"—and what a a cavalier the unnamed "One!" Bless "The One and I," breathing the fresh breath of sweet and mischievous genius! (Jacobs.)

"The Palace of Danger" is Miss Mabel Wagnell's effort to write the romance of that strange creole Pompadour, who because of her association with a king, is lifted above the denizens of the red light area in the minds of many. It is a loosely, dully told story with occasional good pages. (Funk & Wagnalls.)

"I AND MY TRUE LOVE" is probably the name selected by the publisher for H. A. Mitchell Keays' latest novel. The name looks well on the cover, but does not indicate the nature of the novel. A struggling author loses his wife because he has taken it for granted that she knows he loves her. A man who makes love continually wins her and after obtaining a divorce she marries the new love. He decorates their home as a frame for her, teaches her to walk so that "no man could see her without wishing to take her into his arms" and impresses upon her a scorn of motherhood. She left a baby with her first husband who sends her a girl of 19 at the opening of the story. The girl's father is a successful dramatist; the man who stole the wife is dead. The girl's father wishes her to see something of her mother's world before marriage to a staid, steadfast good fellow who loves her. The presentation of this problem of association will fascinate the reader. Up to the point of consequences the author's treatment is masterly. From that point it may be that the reader will disagree wih the author, quarrel with him for reuniting a couple so violently opposed and shifting the manifest current of the tale by means of artificial dykes. (Small, Maynard & Co.)

TRY "Salthaven" in your effort to chase away the cares and worries of the world. There are no problems to leave a dark brown taste behind them, but just a charming view of undefiled human nature as it is found in a quiet English seacoast town. It is a book of finely drawn characters rather than a novel, though it has a consistent story, full of charming surprises. One of the most delightful features of the book is the laughable ruse of the girl, about whom the story is woven, to get rid of the attentions of the son of her father's employer, between whom and herself an apparently impassable social gulf exists. On a trip to London, she meets a friendly old sea captain of her town and conceives the idea of notifying the folk back home that she has married him. He doesn't like the role of play-husband, but she, knowing his gallantry, takes snap judgment and sends the news home over his protest. He has to stand for the story when he returns home before she does, and then starts on a two-year voyage. After his departure she reappears at home. The young suitor soon guesses the truth about the marriage story, and, after many ludicrous happenings, described with a fine sense of humor, shows that the social gulf is not impassable and marries her. The story is finely told throughout. (Scribner's.)

Popularizing the technical features of the recent wireless discoveries is a difficult task, but Walter W. Massie and Charles R. Underhill have accomplished it satisfactorily in "Wireless Telegraphy and Telephony." All the "shop" terms are explained and the principles of this new agency in civilization are made so plain that the stupidest layman may understand them. (D. Van Nostrand Co.)

JOSEPH CONRAD has told a whimsical story in "The Point of Honor." An officer under Napoleon conveys to another officer the order of a superior that he keep to his quarters under arest for killing a civilian in a duel. The offending officer picks a quarrel with the messenger and they fight a duel, without serious injury to either. Neither reveals the cause of their encounter, but thereafter they encounter with swords and pistols, afoot and on horseback, many times, until their quarrel becomes a famous mystery in the army. The affair ends as absurdly as it began, but not until after the passing of Napoleon and each of the officers has risen from the lieutenancy of their first meeting to the ranks of general. (McClure.)

ONE can imagine Mrs. Wilson Woodrow leaning back from writing "The Silver Butterfly" and laughing "fit to kill"—not because the novel contains, a spark of wit or humor, but because it is in all its parts deliciously bobbsmerrill and the author of "The New Missioner" deliberately set forth to make it so. The drop from the sane reality, human humor and honest workmanship of "The New Missioner" to this fustian fiction for the foolish is appalling.

A GOOD old-time fighting story is "Wulnoth, the Wanderer," by H. Escott Inman. It is of early England when the Scandinavians ravaged the coast of the North Sea and planted those seeds from which grew a people we call the Anglo-Saxons. Wulnoth and his parents, fugitive from the wrath of a chief, take refuge with Hardacanute. The story is of Wulnoth's love for his patron's daughter, Edgiva, and their wanderings. Christianity plays a strange part in the unfolding of the tale, which is told in a style suggestive of the time. (A. C. McClurg.)

"BY RIGHT OF PURCHASE," by Harold Bindloss, is a novel of the Canadian Northwest. Carrie Denham, an English girl, marries Charley Leland, a wheat grower. He takes her to the frontier, which proves too raw for her culture. She loathes it. Leland exercises an admirable self-restraint, but it is not until her husband suffers adversity at the hands of whisky runners, prairie fires and cheap wheat that she comes to her senses. The characterizations in the book are crude, the author's invention is too frequently exhausted in dialogue and description, and a very good plot suffers from poor execution. (Stokes.)

"HEARTBREAK HILL," by Herman Knickerbocker Viele, is a comedy romance of much merriment and ingenuity. The hill in question is owned by two cousins. The adventures which center about it have the flavor of a good fable. Withal there is something medieval in them, notwithstanding their Wall streets and motor cars. A very good book of the whimsical sort is "Heartbreak Hill." (Duffield & Co.)

THE lover of nature and all her creatures may enrich his library with three new books of the autumn. They are "In the Open," by Stanton Davis Kirkham (Elder); "The Bible of Nature," by J. Arthur Thompson (Scribners), and "Black Bruin," by Clarence Hawkes (Jacobs). The last-named is a story reciting the adventures of that drollest and most amusing of the American animals immortalized by the Teddy Bear. Prof. Thompson's book is a series of five learned lectures delivered before Lake Forest College. They abound in beauty, philosophy and science. The work by Mr. Kirkham is the prose song of a naturalist-poet who sees the outdoors with understanding eyes. "In the Open" and "The Bible of Nature" are books to be cherished.

THE reason and practical value of mental therapeutics are well stated by Laura M. Westall in "A Common Sense View of the Mind Cure." This little book puts the whole matter in a very small compass and it is doubtful if it is not a complete guide to any reader willing to use his own will and mind in furtherance of the object. There is nothing mystical in these instructions. Probably any up-to-date physician would indorse every recommendation. The information is only in outline, but there is enough to make a beginning. People who have got beyond the materialism of 30 years ago but are not prepared to take up with Christian Science, New Thought or other purely immaterial remedies will find much that is suggestive in these pages, and those who follow the directions faithfully cannot but receive some benefit. For, after all is said, it is only the application of instructed common sense to the problem of health. (Funk & Wagnalls.)

The juvenile admirers of Jack Lorimer—one of the finest boys in the day's literature—may now enjoy a vacation with their hero in Winn Standish's latest book entitled "Jack Lorimer's Holidays" Jack and his friends go camping, box, wheel, motor, race horses, play jokes and, incidentally, seek health in a systematic way. Jack is a wholesome host and every boy is better for reading of his exploits. (Page.)

THE writers of books will not let the historical novel rest in peace. Nearly everybody has to write at least one. H. C. Bailey calls his "Col. Greatheart." It is a stirring story of the Cavalier and Roundhead days in England, with a saving grace of humor that is usually missing from novels of this kind. The theme of the story is the worship of a country bumpkin for a nobleman's daughter and his going away to war to win fame that will make him worthy of her. He triumphs on the battlefield, but she proves to be unworthy, and he seeks happiness with another.

ANNE WARNER wrote a strange story in "The Panther," which has been printed with illustrations in color. There is a touch of over floridness, of hysteria, in the writing which mars one's appreciation of the parable, especially as the floridity does not unify with commonplaces of description. A man and a woman, highly placed in this world, meet and love. There is an undefined reason against their love and they fight against it, but the temptation which Miss Warner presents in the symbolism of a panther cub grows until it slays the woman. (Small, Maynard & Co.'

"An American Singer in Paris" is not what one thinks it is on picking it up—it is a novel. However, it doesn't disappoint expectations, for it gives what is apparently an accurate impression of life in Parisian music circles. The author, Mrs. Hanson Workman, who kindly gives us a photograph of herself in her study, assures us she spent 14 months in Paris gathering the material for the story. (Tribune Printing Co.)

"THAT Boy o' Mine" is a charming tale of Tennessee village life by Nina Hill Robinson. It is full of well-drawn types such as every little town holds. When you wish to revel in human nature undefiled, go to a country town, where you will see men as God made them, free of the taint and artificiality of city life. It is such men you meet in this little book. (Publishing House, M. E. Church South, Nashville.)

Getting money is no longer the sole principle of the commercial world; getting right with yourself and with your fellow-men is rapidly being recognized as even more essential. One of the strongest agents in this moral uplift is Waldo Pondray Warren, Chicago merchant, whose "Thoughts on Business" are spreading the gospel of ideals and morality in trade. These, as most readers of the Post-Dispatch—in which many of them have been printed—know, are short sermons pointing out that the only thing for the business man to do is the right thing. The volume just out is the second series and the two books are of vast importance to the young man entering upon any walk in life. (Forbes & Co.)

IN "The Courage of Capt. Plum," James Oliver Curwood has what is bound to be one of the successful novels of the year. It is a first-class love story mixed with thrilling exploits, the period being that of the Mormon occupation of Beaver Island in Lake Michigan, when Strang ruled as King. The theme is the rescue of a beautiful girl, with whom Capt. Plum fell in love on sight, from Strang's harem, to which she is doomed. Romance and tragedy were in their flower in the early days of Mormonism after the cult had passed from ridicule to the dignity of persecution, and Mr. Curwood has worked well this fertile field in the development of his story. The book is full of stirring situations, which the author handles admirably.

A lot of tales contributed by Robert Neilson Stephens to newspapers and magazines have been collected in a thick book, called "Tales for Bohemia." It is the work of the apprentice Stephens and not the good workman who wrote "And Enemy of the King." (L. C. Page.)

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON.

Confessions of the 700th Wife, Translated for the Post-Dispatch

BY HELEN ROWLAND

VERILY, verily, my daughter, seek not to marry thine ideal! For an ideal ceaseth to be an ideal once he becometh a husband, and even a genius developeth embonpoint and a bald head and sleepeth with his mouth open.

Yea, a poet's soft voice on a summer afternoon soundeth not like the click of his typewriter on a winter morning, and an actor's flights of temperament in his "Romeo" scene are not as his flights of temper in a scene at the breakfast table.

Better by far a husband who can mend a broken bed spring than one who can play Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," and one who can stop the faucet that leaketh than one who can write a sonnet.

Yea, better a door mat upon which thou canst wipe thy feet than a tin god on a throne that giveth thee a crick in the neck with looking upward. And the husband who parteth his hair and getteth his neckties to please thee, who doeth his smoking in the kitchen and spendeth his evenings by the fire, though he be not a thing of beauty, yet he is a joy forever.

Let her that marrieth a "lion" prepare her ears for his roaring, but she that marrieth a lamb walketh in the ways of peace, and her days are made pleasant with imported gowns and presents at Christmas time.

For when a genius taketh a wife he taketh her for granted, but when the man that eateth with his knife and useth two negatives seeketh a spouse he seeketh a "treasure."

Therefore, I charge thee, place not thy husband upon a pedestal, O my daughter, lest he come down with a crash! Selah!

Ten Cents

Is Your Baby Moral?

By Dr. Woods Hutchinson.

WE DO not expect paternal feelings in a child of 5. Why, then, should we expect any other of those race-regarding impulses which we term "morality"? Even to appeal to the "better feelings" of a child of 8 or 10 is often almost as irrational as the celebrated apostrophe of the emotional Irish barrister who, in the fine frenzy of his peroration, whirled upon the judge with the thrilling appeal, "Sirr, was you iver a mother?" To appeal to a child's better nature, while excellent, in moderation, often does little more than make a hypocrite out of him before his time, writes Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Woman's Home Companion.

He has got your hair and his mother's eyes and voice, and some of your little tricks of manner—and temper—now, and he is just as safe to develop your superb self-control and civic devotion and consideration for others if you will only give him time—and set him a good example. Meanwhile preaching to him that he should possess these qualities will expedite matters precious little, and unless backed up by example, not at all. Remember that life and growth of all sorts are but a response to environment, and new responses can only occur as opportunity is afforded for them.

Strike a Balance in Blessings.

By W. D. Howells, in Harpers.

IN THE good old days when religion was not so largely a matter of conduct as it is thought now, but was more in the nature of a contract with the Creator, it was the custom to reckon up one's blessings from time to time, and see how the balance stood. If you had, for instance, had your health for a long period, or had been very successful in business, or had harvested uncommonly heavy crops, or had an extraordinarily good apple year, or had escaped the malice of a freshet or a fire, or had worsted an enemy in a lawsuit, or had in any other wise come out on top in your affairs or experiences, it was proof not only that you had fulfilled the conditions of the agreement, but that the divine party of the second part had not forgotten them. Of course, you did not put it so crudely in acknowledging the facts, and if you had more truly imagined God than most men had then, or have yet imagined Him, you did not enumerate the misfortunes of your neighbors as your blessing in disguise. You did not thank your Maker that while A had been laid up all winter with rheumatism you had escaped without a twinge; that while B had gone to pieces in the dry goods line you had done so well in your grocery; that while C had cut no hay worth mentioning your mow was filled to bursting; that while D's want of foresight in dealing with caterpillars' nests the year before had left him without a pint of cider, your barrels overflowed. You did not intimate in your prayer or praise that the burning of E's house without a cent of insurance, while a high wind blew the flames away from yours, looked almost providential; or that the jury which found for you against F had seemed to follow a direct leading from on high. Yet, probably at the bottom of your heart some such shabby convictions were lurking, and if your thanksgiving refused them uterance, it was because you did not feel it quite seemly to mention them, and not because you did not harbor them. Or did very good people sometimes allow something like them to get into words? Was not it thought well to fortify one's faith by contrasting one's own good luck with the bad luck of others: Or at the least, was not it, or is not it still considered right to look about one in moments of rebellion or affliction, and see if one is not as well off as other people?

SOMETHING FOR NOTHI

A Prevalent Vice Set Forth for the Post-Dispatch

BY LILLIAN BELL,

FROM the men with get-rich-quick schemes which depend on wat to the children in New Orleans who bought only where the lagni given, Americans are obsessed with the desire to get something ing, in their blindness never realizing that the thing is a moral and s not a physical impossibility.

The trouble with us as a nation is that some of our most cherishe characteristics are based on false admirations and inverted ideas.

For example, take a straw vote of any one hundred men and wo whether they do or do not admire the robber barons of the Coal Tru Trust, the Steel Trust, the Oil Trust or any of the railroad or ban which have wrecked institutions, thrown honest men out of employm ruin and disaster among the many in their wake that the purses might be fattened, and you will find a majority voting "yea."

How many times I have heard it! So-and-so is indicted by the for palpable and flagrant robbery. He gets off by reason of the has stolen from the people. And at the dinner table that night you "Well, he got off, just as I knew he would. But I am glad of it, fo I rather admire the man! He must have been clever to have mad money!"

Clever! So is the burglar who cracks your safe without waking is the footpad who sandbags you and gets away with your purse, "admire" his cleverness?

But the grief is that at bottom the whole ideal is a deception. is never given for nothing. You pay and often pay bitterly for you lagniappe. Do you suppose the admiration of the unthinking is sw robber barons? No. They pay in their unsatisfied yearning for the the few who despise them in spite of their money.

In spite of their money! Could you enjoy sharing the booty of Wouldn't you consider money "tainted" which had come from the sal up bracelets and rings and babies' lockets—even though it brought m you were invited to live at ease on the proceeds?

What is the difference? None, ethically. Much, legally. Most l way you look at it.

The woman who "shops" when she is in need of nothing pays in chagrin for her "something for nothing." The man who earns a manner which will not bear the searchlight of honest opinion pay and flamboyant ways for his crimes long after he is dead. He p contempt of the upright. His children pay in cruel words which n utter to their parents. His servants despise him, knowing as th ously stand behind his chair that they are more honest than he.

If his son goes to the dogs and his daughter is married for her abused for her father's reputation, is he paying or not?

He who in life made his billion getting something for nothing often goes to his grave with his family's unhappiness at its depth, knowing that the payment is being exacted by the family's inexorable law of cause and effect, which will operate until the worth of the uttermost farthing has been settled.

So, after all, is it really "nothing" which was got?

COCHEMS BELIEVES THE ONSIDE KICK MORE VALUABLE AS MEANS OF OFFENSE THAN FORWARD PASS PAPKE WILL GIVE HIS OLD RIVAL, HUGO KELLEY, ANOTHER CHANCE BY FIGHTING HIM ON COAST SPORT

NSIDE KICK BETTER THAN FORWARD PASS

ch Cochems of St. Louis U. Be- lieves It Safer as a Means of Offense.

In the article which follows, Coach Eddie Cochems of the St. Louis University football team discusses fully the advantages of the two new offensive plays made possible by the new rules, namely, the forward pass and the onside kick. In his opinion the onside kick is the safer and better ground gainer today, but he hints that in time players may become so proficient in passing the ball that the game will be entirely changed.

The penalties are so heavy for failure in executing the forward pass today that it is dangerous to use it. The onside kick often loses the ball, but almost as much distance is gained as in a punt.

Cochems uses both plays for his team, but has not been overly successful in the use of the forward pass this year.

By EDWARD B. COCHEMS,

Coach of the St. Louis U. Football Team.

relative value of the onside kick and the forward pass has been a oted question to the followers of football. Most coaches use both of- isive arms in order to cary their attack. The use of either depends e measure on the ability of the team to successfully execute it. curate kicker the onside kick works well, especially if you have and ends to follow it up. The pass likewise depends on an ac- heady passer.

the sporting writers of the country and the majority of coaches vor the onside kick, all other things being equal, and in fact it the most successful part of the team's repertoire. At least from t accounts of games played it seems to have occupied the place of rick plays.

es governing the kick and the pass must be thoroughly understood ghing the value of either. In the case of a kick from scrimmage, men except the kicker are onside, i. e., any one of them can get e moment it touches the ground. In the case of a pass the oppo- of affairs is true. If the ball touches the ground before coming in th the person of any player of either eleven, it goes back to the spot [illegible] was made and is given to the defenders if made on wn and if made on either the first or second down it goes back to m which passed and 15 yards more added towards the offensive l, but with this difference, that it remains in possession of the team pass.

Harder to Execute but Involves No Big Penalty

ck, of course, is much more difficult of accurate execution than the but the penalty for failure of the pass is much more severe than oss of the ball on the kick. Taking it all in all, the kick, I believe, r method of offense, but less brilliant and effective.

event of a perfect kick, you still have the problem of kicking it and making a run. Of course sometimes it bounds right into the layer's hands, and then it is as effective as the pass, but this oc- is rare indeed. No kicker can make the ball bounce just right when ground.

ll cannot be kicked as far as a regular kick would go, because of man's position and the fact that the kicker's side could not pos- h the ball as soon as the safety man. Owing to these conditions, ccessful kick loses for the kicker's side the difference between it lar punt.

the opponents be able to successfully run back these punts equal rence between the onside kick and put, of course, the kick (on- far the best to use, since it gives the opportunity to gain possession the distance to be gained.

uestion becomes complicated when you consider the fitness of the backs that recover the ball and the kicker's ends, who much tackle catcher. The position of the ball on the field near one side or the the proximity to either goal line makes it a play of strategy. Out- above considerations, there is not much science in the execution of nside kick, for the simple reason that the kicker cannot kick so far the field that he will outstrip the speed of his team-mates.

rward Pass Presents Great Chances for Opening Up Game

HE forward pass offers many more opportunities for strategy and scientific demonstration. Under the present use of the forward pass, I believe that the onside kick is the most effective, but should some coach ne day get a squad of men who can intelligently work out the English gby game, that of quick passing back or to the side and then send it far wn the field or get some one player in the open for a run, the forward ss will undoubtedly destroy the present mass formations and conservative as of coaches and open wide the game.

In making a pass the portion of the field it is made in must be considered the down. Besides this, the strength of the opponents' offense and value ur kicker's punts must be considered. If you have a good kicker you can chances as well as when the opponents' offense is weak.

Papke Signs to Fight Hugo Kelly on Coast

Great Middleweight Will Give Old Opponent Another Chance in the Ring.

BY JOHN POLLOCK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Billy Papke has signed for a fight at the Jeffries A. C. of Los Angeles with Hugo Kelly, the Italian middleweight. It is to be pulled off four weeks after his bout with Ketchel. They will fight 25 rounds for 50 per cent of the gross receipts, 60 to the winner and 40 to the loser. Papke is to get an extra bonus of 15 per cent of the receipts for signing the articles.

A match was arranged last night between Charlie Griffin, the Australian champion and Battling Hurley, the little cyclone fighter of Passaic, N. J., they will meet in a six-round bout at the American A. C. of Schenectady on the night of Nov. 25. This ought to be a hummer, as they fought a slashing six-round fight at the Bedford A. C. of Brooklyn a month ago.

Manager Johnny White of the National A. C. has decided to bring off the six-round bout between Philadelphia Jack O'Brien and Sam Langford at his club on next Friday night.

Jim Stewart, the heavyweight fighter, who has been laid up on account of a bad cut under his eye which John Wille, the Chicago fighter, gave him with his head during their recent six-round bout in Philadelphia, will be ready to box again in a few days. He will most likely be matched to meet Marvin Hart, the Louisville heavyweight, for 20 rounds at Savannah, Ga.

Jim Buckley of New York has been selected to referee the 25-round fight between Bert Keyes and "Kid" Sullivan of Washington, at the Opera House at Savannah, Ga., on the night of Nov. 25. The club made a good selection in securing Buckley as the third man in the ring, for he is fearless, has refereed many contests and knows the game thoroughly.

Sam Lewis, manager of Charley Griffin, the Australian fighter, last night received a telegram from Baron Long offering Griffin a match with either Johnny Murphy or Johnny Powell, the California lightweights, to be decided next month. "If Long accepts our terms," said Lewis, "I will take Griffin to the Coast on the first train that leaves after we get our transportation."

There is talk now of a match between Harry Lewis, the Quaker City light middleweight, and Willie Lewis, the local fighter. The matchmaker of the Edgewood Athletic Club of New Haven, Conn., is anxious to bring them together in a 10-round bout at the next stag of the club, about Nov. 16. Willie is matched to box Tom Carey, the local heavyweight, a 6-round bout at the Dry Dock A. C. stag on Monday night.

Four good fighters from this city will meet four of the best they have in the Quaker City at the National A. C. of Philadelphia tonight. Jim Donovan will tackle Tommy Sullivan in the main bout; Paddy Sullivan of Brooklyn will take on Paddy Lavin; Teddy Maloney of Philadelphia will meet Tommy Dutton of England; Lou Sheppard of this city will box Young Nitchie of Philadelphia, and Harry Stone of Brooklyn will exchange wallops with Tommy Langdon of Philadelphia. All the bouts will be for six rounds.

Pishon weighs but 125 pounds and it is not known how he will stand the battling of a big game. His work will be watched with keen interest today and will be the principal feature of the game for Dartmouth men.

Schildmiller, the veteran end, who has been laid up all the season, plays his first game today and he will do much to steady down the team and strengthen the line. Tobin has been laid off for a few days' rest and will not play today.

BRIEF BITS OF SPORT FOR HASTY READING

PETERSON IS ONCE MORE VICTOR AT RED BALL GAME

Charles C. Peterson of St. Louis, champion red-ball player, added another scalp to his belt and incidentally again demonstrated the fact that he will not crack under fire in a hot game, when he defeated Albert Cutler of Boston in their red-ball match at the Pine billiard hall last night, 75 to 63. Cutler is counted one of the best balk-line players in the country. Peterson won the bank and led from the start of the game. He played the better game throughout. Cutler made a strong finish, but when he had a good chance to win out, "stiffened" up and after a couple of safety shots "Pete" got his chance and clicked off the four points necessary to give him the match.

Thomas Hueston, three-cushion billiard champion, who is practicing for his match with Alfredo De Oro for the pool championship, has a hard practice pool match on for this evening at the Rex billiard hall, when he plays Harry Cline of Philadelphia. Cline won the world's championship three-cushion title and is a strong allround cue expert. He has not been practicing pool, but Hueston will certainly have to leave out all wraps to beat him just the same.

Day, Cline, Capron, De Oro and Cutler have all been defeated by Peterson in red-ball billiard matches. John Horgan is the logical man to face "Pete" next, which would give the champion a clean record of all of the local experts if he won. Frank Day was anxious for another chance at Peterson.

"If John Daly wants to play me balk-line billards for money he can get a match from me any time he wants to," said Peterson before last night's match. "Furthermore, Daly can make Cutler and Cline live on wind puddings for the rest of their natural lives if he has the money to wager than he can beat them in balk-line matches and beats them, after which I would want another chance at him. Daly 'almost' has a chance to beat Cline, Cutler or myself. That is all the encouragement I can give him."

ADOLPH EATON IS AFTER FEATHERWEIGHT FIGHTERS

Adolph Eaton, an aggressive and hard-hitting local featherweight boxer, wants a fight. Eaton as a bantamweight amateur boxer won a number of bouts. He has also been successful as a professional boxer. Eaton wants a bout on the East Side. He bars no featherweight.

The Missouri A. C. will hold its first amateur boxing tournament of the season in the club gymnasium this evening. Marshall Eaton, who was to have boxed "Kid" Maple, is without an opponent, as Maple was hurt some days ago training.

The two "Bobbies," Robert Gresham and Robert Charlton, will meet in a bout at 105 pounds. Gresham is the boy who has a decision over Johnny Coulon of Chicago, professional bantamweight champion, to his credit. Charlton is a sturdy little fellow, but not aggressive enough. He lost a decision to Gresham because he did not force the fighting. This evening he promises to tear in from start to finish and protect his jaw at the same time. If he does, Gresham is in for a stormy session.

Eddie Randall, the well-known local boxer, who is boxing instructor of the M. A. C., has been in bed for some time with an attack of blood poisoning, but is expected to handle tonight's bouts. Randall while boxing raised a blister on the ball of his foot. He paid no attention to it. The blister became infected and Randall was forced to take a vacation.

FOREIGN AUTO DRIVERS HERE FOR BIG RACE

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Five of the foreign drivers who are to take part in the international grand prize race of the Automobile Club of America to be held in Savannah, Nov. 26, arrived tonight on the French liner La Lorraine. The driving contingent included Nazzaro, Wagner, Hautvast, Rigal and Duray. Nazzaro has brought with him the car in which he won the Florio cup in Italy, a few months ago. It was in this race that he established the phenomenal record of 74¼ miles an hour for 325 miles. Wagner is remembered here as the winner of the 1906 Vanderbilt race.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 31.—The first car and driver to arrive for the grand prize race and the light car race here on Nov. 25 and 26, came today by steamer from New York. The car is a Buick and the owner and driver Edward A. Hearne of Chicago.

O'TOOLE FIGHTS DRAW WITH CLEVER BOXER, HARRY BAKER

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—Tommy O'Toole of this city last night fought Harry Baker of San Francisco to a draw in a whirlwind six-round bout at the State A. C. The fastest kind of boxing characterized every round, first one and then the other forcing the pace.

At the end of the fifth round Baker held the upper hand through his cleverness in blocking O'Toole's blows in the third, fourth and fifth rounds and his ability to reach Tommy's face with straight lefts and hooks. At the end of the fifth round O'Toole was bleeding from cut under his eye.

In the last round O'Toole tore into Baker and never let up. Tommy hammered Baker hard about the face and body, skinned his nose and had him bleeding from the mouth. All of Baker's cleverness was unable to withstand the savage attack of O'Toole and Harry hung on at every chance. O'Toole's work in the last round earned him a draw.

Wassem to Meet Doerr.

Al Wassem will meet Freddie Doerr in a wrestling match at the St. Louis Quoit Club, 1622 Jefferson avenue, tomorrow afternoon. The men will wrestle best two out of three falls. Wassem is at least twenty pounds lighter than Doerr, but is expected to give Doerr a good match, for the reason that Wassem is a clever wrestler and in good condition. The match will be started about 3 o'clock.

M'KINLEY AND MANUAL FIGHT TO 0 TO 0 TIE

Two High School Teams in a Fierce Battle for Honor of the League.

The McKinley High School and Manual Training School football teams battled to a standstill at Sportsman's Park this morning. The final score was 0 to 0. This was one of the important games of the Interscholastic race, as the winner would probably have won the championship. Now there is likely to be another game between these teams, before the football pennant is awarded.

Manual plainly had the best of the first half, only poor work on fielding punts prevented them from scoring.

In the second half McKinley was strong, and it was only luck—the blocking of an attempted drop kick, and two forward passes which saved Manual's goat.

In the second half McKinley took the ball from their own 30-yard line to Manual's 10-yard line, on fine work by Zachritz and Newman. Normal held here, and Colven tried a drop kick which was blocked. Manual unwisely tried to run the ball out, instead of kicking, and McKinley took it on the 15-yard line. Manual held and McKinley tried a forward pass which went to Adams of Manual.

McKinley soon got the ball again on Manual's 10-yard line, and tried another forward pass which was interrupted by Krutsch. Krutsch then kicked out of danger, and the game ended with the ball in the center of the field.

The line-up:

McKinley.	Position.	Manual.
Newman	Left end	Henderson
Vollmar	Left guard	Porhon-Funston

PLANS FOR FLEECING THE FARMER MADE IN ST. LOUIS

Ingenious Swindling Schemes Are Concocted Here in Winter—Girl Cavalry Troop.

A peculiar system of frauds practiced on the inhabitants of the Southwest has now been discovered as having its winter headquarters in St. Louis. Here ingenius swindles are being concocted for the purpose of fleecing innocent farmers who have been robbed of tens of thousands by this means during the past few months, the full story of which will be related in the next Sunday Post-Dispatch.

A lot has been written about the horse this week, but few people are aware that near this city a large group of fashionable young women have formed a cavalry troop, adopted a uniform and go through all of the United States Army cavalry maneuvers under the instruction of a West Point graduate. This remarkable troop is the subject of a feature in the next Sunday Post-Dispatch.

"The Strange Episode of the Missing Wallet," might appropriately be the title of a remarkable Sherlock Holmes story involving the disappearance of $40,000, and which has its center of interest in this city. This incident of real life in the West equals many of the most famous stories of Conan Doyle, and it will be fully described in the next Sunday Post-Dispatch.

A half page on new and strange things in and around St. Louis describes many curios.

The Hotel Clerk writes about election officers and their peculiarities.

A feature in the coming Sunday Post-Dispatch describes the remarkable appeal recently made to a grand jury near this city by two little children who touched the jury in a tender spot and saved the life of their father. With this is related some remarkable Western legal history in regard to "human interest pleas" made by lawyers to jurymen.

ROOSEVELT AGAIN INSISTS ROCKEFELLER IS DECEIVING

Statement From White House Declares Standard Oil Man Is for Bryan.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Following up the statement issued late last evening from the White House regarding the announcement made by John D. Rockefeller of his preference for Mr. Taft in the presidential struggle, a second statement was issued today as follows:

"The President has received numerous letters and telegrams showing that this trick of Rockefeller, doubtless made by agreement with the Democratic party, will fail absolutely. It is self-evident on its face, as Mr. Taft has said, that if Mr. Rockefeller had really wanted him elected he would have kept quiet about it and that he has come out for him as being the way in which to damage him most."

The following telegram also was made public:

"Cleveland, O., Oct. 31, 1908.

"The President—The labor vote will not be deceived by Rockefeller's political trick. We will bury him with Tom Johnson. Cuoyhoga County is as safely Republican as the State of Ohio and the electoral college.

"A. L. FAULKNER,

"President of the Window Glass Workers of America."

BOWLERS SHOW GREAT SPEED ON THE ALLEYS

Fern Glens Spring Surprise by Beating Strong Hyde Park Five in League Match.

One of the biggest surprises of the local bowling season was recorded last night when the Fern Glen team defeated the Hyde Parks in the Palace League match on the Palace alleys. The teams met in a Palace League match. The Hyde Parks have been shooting a strong game. Last night the "Boss," Fred Langenberg, could not get started and when Langenberg cannot crack out a good score the other members of the team seem to get an attack of nervousness.

The Hyde Parks won the first game, but the Fern Glens won the next two contests and the match in easy fashion. Langenberg topped the Hyde Parks with a 184 average, which is good bowling, but about 17 pins a game short of the "Boss'" regular average.

Grassmuck, Lukens, Pabst and the other "Careful" boys were evenly bunched, Grassmuck topping the bunch with a 189 average.

The scores of the tenpin and cocked hat league games bowled last night follow:

POLITICAL ARGUMENT ENDED BY MAN WHO USED A KNIFE

Victim's Description of Assailant Results in Arrest of One-Eyed Man.

John Seymour, 50 years old, a deputy Constable in Justice Moore's court, was taken to the City Hospital with a bad cut on his forehead, and Henry Carr, 23, of 101 South Fourteenth street, a one-eyed man, was locked up in Central District Station as a result of a political argument Friday night.

Policeman Lambert found Seymour at Fifteenth and Market streets at 11:30 p. m., bleeding from a four-inch wound on the forehead.

"I went into Henry Nolte's saloon on the corner here to get a drink, and somebody asked me what I thought of the coming election," said Seymour. "I said it looked very much like Taft. The other fellow said he'd stake all his money on Bryan's chances. I said there was nothing to it but Taft. He declared that Bryan was the only one who had a lookin. Then some one-eyed fellow stepped up to me and said he was for Bryan. I told him I didn't care who he was for, and he drew a knife and cut me."

Lambert went into the saloon. There was only one one-eyed man there. That was Carr. He was arrested on a charge of assault to kill.

JOKER STEALS CRAPE AND ATTACHES IT TO WRONG DOOR

False Report of Girl's Death Spread by Man Who Was "Out With the Boys."

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31.—Grafton Dulaney, son of Mrs. Walter Dulaney, and one of the best-known young men in fashionable life, confessed to Captain of Detectives Humphrey last night that it was he who removed the funeral crape from the door of the home of the late John M. Denison, a wealthy merchant, to the door knob of the residence of Mrs. Nelson Perin, widow of a social leader, and spread the report that Miss Gladys Perin, then in New York with her mother, was dead.

While Mr. Dulaney talked freely of the affair, he said that it was a most unfortunate escapade, and one which he deeply regretted.

"I had been out with the boys," he said. "I was returning home some time in the morning, and when I reached the Denison residence and saw the crape on the door it suddenly struck me that it would be a good joke to place it on the residence of someone else."

DOWNWARD TREND FOR SECURITIES ON WALL STREET

General Inclination to Close Out Commitments Responsible for Decline.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The Evening Sun, in its financial review today, says:

"The general heavy tone of this morning's stock market was not specifically accounted for, except perhaps on the theory that there had taken place some revival in uneasiness as to the outcome of the presidential election because of the most recent striking developments in the political campaign. In fact, the Rockefeller indorsement of Mr. Taft was quite commonly referred to as one factor in the sagging course of prices.

"It would appear more probable, however, that the usual and general inclination to close out speculative commitments in advance of the election might be named as a sufficient reason for the course of the stock market. The dealings were in light volume and largely of a strictly professional character. The London stock market was generally heavy, although the quotations for American stocks showed only small and irregular changes, and little was done here for foreign account.

"The weekly reports of the mercantile agencies upon the state of the country's trade were indecisive exhibits. Forecasts of the bank statement suggested such comparatively negative showings as have been made for the past few weeks.

"Nearly all of the more active railway shares showed at one time or another declines in the neighborhood of 1 per cent, and there were few exceptions to the common drift of prices.

"Some attention was excited by the unusual activity and the quite pronounced strength of Union Pacific preferred. The common stock moved, however, in line with the general market and the dealings at large presented no features of particular interest.

"The London stock market was generally heavy today, although the changes in the quotations for American shares were small and irregular. Consols were 1-16 lower, at 84 9-16, both for money and the account. Home rails and other gilt-edged investment issues were under some pressure on account of the firmer tendencies of the money market. Rio Tintos fell ⅜ to 70⅝, while South African mining shares were steady. Money on call was quoted at 1 to 1½ per cent, and the rates of discount in the open market for short and three-months bills at 1¾ to 2⅝ per cent."

Opening prices of stocks today were shaded from the last prices of yesterday. Dealings were light and changes were narrow and showed a sprinkling of gains, but the active speculative stocks were lower. Southern Pacific declined ⅝ and Union Pacific and Reading ⅜. Westinghouse Electric rose ⅜.

A selling movement was in evidence at the opening and the first sales of the leading stocks generally showed opening declines of ¼ to ½. Industrials shaded off the same way.

Prices dropped steadily, the demand being too small to absorb the realizing sales, very little interest being shown in the specialties outside of Amalgamated Copper. St. Paul, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Reading, Atlantic Coast Line, Amalgamated Copper and International Pump yielded a point. Union Pacific preferred and Bethlehem Steel preferred improved 2, Pacific Coast 1½ and Great Northern Ore certificates 1¼.

The weekly statement of the associated banks, issued today, shows the following changes:

Reserve on all deposits, increase $709,125; reserve on deposits other than United States, increase, $710,325; loans, decrease, $5,061,300; specie, decrease, $1,127,800; legal tenders, increase, $157,900; deposits, decrease, $6,716,100; circulation, decrease, $212,400. Total loans, $1,333,365,600.

The surplus of the banks is $35,902,375, against a deficit last year of $38,838,825, and a surplus two years ago of $3,049,775.

The percentage of actual reserve of the Clearing House banks at the close of business Friday was 27.55.

The statement of banks and trust companies of Greater New York not members of the Clearing House shows that these institutions have aggregate deposits of $1,083,505,400; total cash on hand, $102,889,400, and loans amounting to $976,105,400.

The bank statement follows: Loans, $1,333,365,000, decrease $5,061,300; deposits, $1,411,416,300, decrease $6,716,100; circulation, $52,983,500, decrease $212,400; legal tenders, $81,280,800, increase $157,900; specie, $305,162,400, decrease $1,127,800; reserve, $386,443,200, decrease $969,900; reserve requirements, $352,854,075, decrease $1,679,025; surplus, $33,589,125, increase $709,125; ex-United States deposits, $35,902,375, increase $710,325.

The stock market during the week has been disposed to wait on the result of the elections, but with a feeling of confidence in improved conditions after they are passed. Some profit-taking sales were in evidence prompted by the high level at which prices ruled and by apprehension that such feeling after the elections would overbear the expected new demand. The action of the market in face of these sales indicated the unrelinquished control of the powerful financial forces which have dominated the market for months. Money continued easy. The United States Steel quarterly report higher prices for copper and improving gross earnings of railroads were the conspicuous indexes of the improving tendency of business.

The market closed heavy. London joined in the movement and helped on the decline. Reading's decline reached 2⅛. American Smelting 2¼, Union Pacific 2 and Consolidated Gas 1⅝ and Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific and Amalgamated Copper 1¼. There were numerous declines of ⅛ or more. Covering operations of the shorts caused some rallies. Union Pacific and Reading sagged heavily, the former losing 1¼ and the latter 1⅜ points on the day's trading.

Prime mercantile paper, 4@4½ per cent. Sterling exchange weak, with actual business in bankers' bills at 4.8375@4.84 for 60 days and 4.86@4.8610 for demand. Commercial bills, 4.83¼@4.83⅝. Bar silver, 50⅝c. Mexican dollars, 45c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds irregular.

St. Louis Stock Exchange.

Issues of the United Railways Co. were the only securities traded in at the Saturday session of the St. Louis Stock Exchange. There were substantial advances in all of them. The preferred sold at a uniform price of 58¼, against 58¼ on Friday, and the common sold at 19¾, against 19 on the same day.

The 4s went to 80½, which was bid for them at the close, but they were held at 80¾.

A good advance was registered in Bank of Commerce, 232 being bid for it, but there were no offerings.

Quotations in the miscellaneous list were firm.

ELECTION RETURNS IN BELLEVILLE

Go to the City Square election night if you want to get the latest and most authentic election news, absolutely devoid of color or bias. The Post-Dispatch has arranged with the National Bank to use their second floor that night from which to flash the news from City, State and Nation, by powerful electric stereopticons, on a huge canvass overlooking the square. In addition to the display of election bulletins in typewritten form, easily legible at a distance of nearly a block, there will be an elaborate musical entertainment provided by the Belleville Music Co. with its Victor Auxetophone for the delight of the multitude.

Market Opinions.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Langley & Lawrence say: "We look for a generally firm market until after the election. The movement after the election will depend on the public."

Marshall, Spader & Co. say: "We take a conservative view of the security markets at present."

H. L. Horton & Co. say: "It is not at all improbable that the reaction may go still further, but a serious decline is not a probability at this time and under present circumstances."

J. S. Bache & Co. say: "It is believed that a broad and active speculation will follow next week, with a large increase in foreign interest in our securities."

COTTON ACTIVE AND HIGHER UNDER GENERAL DEMAND

Speculative Feature Is Sale of January Against March at 8-Point Difference.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 1@7 points, near months being relatively firm on the cables, while later positions reflected good weather and a local bearish condition report. They soon firmed up, however, and the general list ruled about 5 to 6 points net higher during the middle of the morning. Business was very active for a half-holiday, the speculative feature being the purchase of 12,000 bales of January against the sale of 12,000 bales of March at an 8-point difference. Private cables attributed the English advance to covering by local shorts against calling by spinners.

The close was steady, with prices net 2 to 8 points higher. Closing bids: Nov., 9.07c; Dec., 9.05c; Jan., 8.87c; Feb., 8.84c; March, 8.85c; April, blank; May, 8.82c; June, 8.78c; July, 8.77c; August, 8.64c.

New York spot market closed quiet, unchanged. Quote mid. 9.35c. Sales, 100 bales.

Liverpool close: Cotton, spot, quiet; prices 9 points higher; American middling, fair, 5.56d; good middling, 5.20d; middling, 5.08d; low middling, 4.88d; good ordinary, 4.37d; ordinary, 3.97d. The sales of the day were 5000 bales, of which 500 were for speculation and export, and included 4700 American. Receipts, 4000 bales, including 700 American. Futures opened steady and closed firm. October, 4.94d; October-November, 4.79½d; November, 4.81½d; November-December, 4.73½d; December-January, [illegible]; January-February, 4.69½d; February-March, 4.69d; March-April, 4.68½d; April-May, 4.68½d; May-June, 4.68½d; June-July, 4.68½d; July-August, 4.66½d.

The Drainage Commissioners of the Centerville Drainage District issued a statement Saturday concerning the additional assessment of $100,000 to complete the drainage canal to drain the chain of lakes adjoining East St. Louis. They say that the assessment was made, not to enable them to build bridges as rumored, but to enlarge the canal at places recommended by the engineers where the contemplated drains would not be sufficient, in view of last spring's freshets. The canal follows the natural water course except at one point, where it follows property boundaries to avoid building additional bridges.

Everything for the new home and on easiest terms. That's what Rhodes-Burford say and want to prove. Drop in and be convinced.

HOGS—A good supply of hogs arrived for Saturday, but good-quality hogs with weight were very scarce, most of the offerings being either light or medium weights. The market was much the same as early yesterday, the top being $5.90 and the bulk of the desirable hogs sold at $5.55@5.80.

A strong demand prevailed for good heavy hogs and had they been here they would have sold considerably higher than anything on sale. Packers bought the bulk of their hogs at $5.50@5.65, while the butchers and shippers bought most of their hogs at $5.75@5.90. Grassy pigs and lights were slow sale and the market closed with quite a number still unsold.

SHEEP—Only a few small lots of sheep arrived and the market was, of course, quiet, but the week closes on a better basis than the close of last week. Good lambs are quotable at $5.25@5.85, good mutton sheep at $4.25@4.40, good stockers at $3.25@3.75 and bucks at $2.25@3. Good fat sheep and lambs are ready sale, but the common ones are hard to sell satisfactory.

HORSES AND MULES—There was a regulation Saturday horse trade today. Very little was doing at the barns, even in a retail way. Receipts included four loads of stuff going through. Dealers look for light runs next week, both of horses and mules. One dealer is filling a small contract for army mules.

WHEAT DECLINES IN DULL MARKET

Prices Depressed to Fractional Losses Under General Long Liquidation.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKETS IN BRIEF.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Failure of the Liverpool wheat market to respond to the advance here yesterday inspired considerable selling by commission houses on the local exchange today, which resulted in a decline of more than ½c. News from Argentina, though meager in volume, was less alarming than that of the previous day, and this tended to depress the market. December opened ⅛@¼c to ⅜c lower at $1.00¼@1.00¼ to $1.00⅜, and descended to 99¾c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 504 cars.

The market was dull the balance of the session, and the market closed weak, with December ⅛@⅜c lower.

Weakness of the cash grain depressed corn futures, and December closed ⅛@⅜c lower.

Oats closed unchanged to ⅛c lower.

With the market still showing no improvement in the volume of trade and with the ante-election dullness most pronounced, local wheat prices were fractionally depressed Saturday under a general letting go of recently purchased long lines. The range was narrow and conditions in the pit lacked interest, with very little demand in evidence. The close was ⅜cto ⅝c lower for the day.

The opening was easier, traders showing an inclination to sell in response to the indifferent cables which followed, and previous advance with unchanged quotations. This was said to be due to improved weather in Argentine as reported by Broomhall, which encouraged the long liquidation. There were few new features.

The movement of wheat to the Northwest was small, with supplies in the interior of that region very light and small amounts offered in the cash markets. Receipts at winter points were also moderate, with shipments of fair volume, but practically no activity was evident in cash wheat, the usual Saturday inactivity being increased by the pronounced dullness which now prevails in all branches of the trade. Reports from the Southwest were generally favorable, though additional rains would be welcome. The weather has become more favorable for the movement of wheat in the Northwest.

There was practically no export demand today, reports in general stating that bids from abroad were few and out of line, with practically no sales put through. Under the most dull conditions, local prices were gradually depressed under the long selling which met with little demand, prices receding to about ⅝c lower levels.

December wheat opened ¼c lower at $1 and declined to 99⅝c. May wheat opened ¼c lower at $1.04, declined to $1.03½ and rallied to $1.03⅝@1.03¾.

The New York Produce Exchange figures estimate decrease in ocean passage wheat this week of 1,600,000 bu. Russian and Danubian shipments are placed at 1,808,000 bu.

Chicago cash sales Friday were 10,000 bu wheat, 185,000 bu corn and 140,000 bu oats. No export business reported.

Berlin wheat closed ¼c higher. Budapest wheat ½c lower and Antwerp wheat unchanged.

There was a good demand for cash wheat at Minneapo'is, with No. 1 Northern 3c to 3¼c over December and No. 2 Northern 1c over. Minneapolis cars were 211, against 210 last year, Duluth 243, against 394 last year, and Winnipeg 479, against 290 last year.

The late trading was exceedingly dull and prices closed easy at practically the low points. December wheat closed at 99⅝c bid, may at $1.03¼ bid and July was offered ⅝c lower at 95⅝c. Cash wheat ruled lower and was in slow demand.

Primary receipts of wheat were 931,427 bu, with shipments of 802,890 bu, and local receipts were 37,704 bu, with shipments of 44,750 bu.

Seaboard clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 563,000 bu.

Corn was under pressure, the selling being the result mainly of the decline in wheat and the good weather for corn. Trading was light and prices gradually declined, the close being ⅛@⅜c lower for the day. Cash corn was in good demand and ruled firm. Cables on corn closed ⅛d lower. Corn clearances were 171,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 146,580 bu, with shipments of 106,687 bu, and local receipts were 14,300 bu, with shipments of 22,540 bu.

Oats futures were inactive. Cash oats ruled steady. Oats clearances were 1000 bu.

Primary receipts of oats were 391,683 bu, with shipments of 679,824 bu, and local receipts were 68,800 bu, with shipments of 42,950 bu.

Boston Stocks.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—Realizing developed in the copper shares in the early trading, resulting in an easier tone. Orders were fairly well distributed. Arbitrage houses bought more stock in the local market than they sold in the early trading. Loaning rates indicated a smaller short interest. In the afternoon there was an improvement to the copper shares with specialties displaying marked strength; comparatively light transactions. North Butte advanced to 85 up 1. Boston & Maine advanced easily on light transactions to 122½ up two points for the day and representing an advance of 8½ points in a week. The market closed generally strong.

Four years in the navy is an education. You will be greatly benefited by the physical training, the fresh-air life, and the wholesome food. Your mind will be broadened by the many opportunities for travel. You will form habits of regularity and self-reliance, which will fit you for the duties of civil life, or for advancement in the navy. Many opportunities are offered for learning a trade. The navy's Electrical School, Artificer School, Gunnery Class and School for the Hospital Corps are equal to any manual training school in the country—and your pay continues while you are under instruction. MUSIC.

All letters intended for the Music Department of the Post-Dispatch should reach this office not later than Friday afternoon.

MUSIC EDITOR.

To present the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in its perfection is the aim impelling every individual having an interest in the promising concert season arranged for by the St. Louis Symphony Society.

St. Louis' lavish disposition in the past toward other entertainments and their brilliance of achievement has put into ferment the enthusiastic desire on the part of the orchestra management to leave nothing undone to give St. Louis this season the most brilliant series of symphony, miscellaneous and popular concerts ever presented in the history of the organization.

Deeply interesting, because novel, will be Charpentier's sparklingly melodious suite, "Impressions of Italy." Gustave Charpentier was born at Dieuze (Alsace-Lorraine) on June 25, 1860, and is still living. His "Impressions of Italy" will be played for the first time by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at the opening concert. Other numbers are Goldmark's "Sakuntala" overture, the immortal Wagner's "Waldweben," from 'Siegfried," and Tschaikowsky's "Theme and Variations from Suite No. 3."

The soloist for this concert is Mme. Jeanne Jomelli, dramatic soprano, of the Metropolitan and Manhattan Opera companies, who will render Charpentier's aria from "Louise," and scene and prayer from "Der Freischuetz."

The society has spared no expense in engaging 62 first-class musicians for this season, forming an orchestra second to none in the country. Improvements have been made in the first and second violin sections, likewise in the violas and cellos.

The management asks of the people of St. Louis and vicinity a more general recognition of the value of the concerts by the purchase of season tickets. Possession of the season ticket is positive evidence of belief in and support of the orchestra on the part of the individual and families, and more than anything else will a generous season ticket sale insure the permanence of the organization.

There still remain unsold any number of desirable season tickets, and it is hoped that all will be sold before the opening concert, Nov. 12. Special rates are made to students in groups of ten or more.

The Beethoven Conservatory of Music will give its first recital of the season early in November, when several novelties will be introduced.

Anton, cellist of the same organization, has announced a series of six chamber music concerts for the season of 1908-09.

GOOD WRITING NOT EXCEPTION WITH CHILDREN

Pupils Participating in Post-Dispatch Contest Furnish Excellent Specimens.

GARNEAU APPROVES IT

Head of Board of Education Says Scholars Should Look Closely to Penmanship.

More than 3500 samples of penmanship have been sent to the Post-Dispatch Handwriting Editor for entry in the handwriting contest. The contest mail fills several big baskets every day.

The contest is hardly one week old and the enthusiasm with which the children have responded to the invitation to compete in penmanship shows what a lively interest the little folks take in that important subject.

Henry C. Garneau, president of the Board of Education, has expressed himself as heartily in favor of anything that will arouse interest among the children in penmanship and expressed regret that he himself is not a better penman.

"It is particularly desirable that such interest be aroused at the present time," said Mr. Garneau, "as a change in style from the vertical system to a combination of the vertical and Spencerian systems has been introduced into the schools recently."

Fine Specimens Submitted.

But the fact that the children are writing in a new style does not seem to have affected the quality of their penmanship in the least. The average sample of writing received by the Handwriting Editor has been of a grade of excellence truly commendable.

The conditions of the contest are easy to comply with, being merely to write this sentence, "The Post-Dispatch is read in every home," and send the written sentence to the Handwriting Editor, accompanied by one of the published coupons, properly filled out.

The contest is open to pupils of parochial as well as public schools, only high school students being barred. The sum of $250 is to be distributed in prizes.

Following are the prizes offered: To the boys and girls of ... years and under, $62.50 in prizes, as follows: First prize, $15; second prize, $10; third prize, $7.50; and 30 prizes of $1 each. To the boys and girls of 8 or 10 years, $62.50 in prizes as follows: First prize, $15; second prize, $10; third prize, $7.50; and 30 prizes of $1 each. To the boys and girls from 10 to 12 years, $62.50 in prizes, as follows: First prize, $15; second prize, $10; third prize, $7.50; and 30 prizes of $1 each. To the boys and girls 12 years of age or older, $62.50 in prizes, as follows: First prize, $15; second prize, $10; third prize, $7.50; and 30 prizes of $1 each.

Real Peril.

"Yes," said the mild-mannered man; "I have been where the bullets fell thickest."

"A war veteran?"

"No. Guide in the Maine woods."

ARREST OF ALTON DOCTOR TO FOLLOW YOUNG GIRL'S DEATH

Inquest of Coroner Will Be Resumed Saturday Night—Father a Witness.

Coroner Streeper of Alton will continue Saturday night the inquest which he began Friday night into the death of Miss Cora Schallenberger of Grafton, who died Friday in Alton from the effects of an operation performed by a physician of Alton.

The girl's father, Charles Schallenberger, a dynamite worker of Grafton, testified that his daughter was 17 years old and that she had left home four weeks ago to visit at the home of George Shott in Upper Alton. He knew nothing further about the case.

A woman witness who gave her testimony in secret and whose name the Coroner would not make public at this time, testified that she accompanied Cora to the office of a physician and that the girl was in the operating room 15 minutes.

The Coroner says he will cause the arrest of a physician well known in Alton. The body of Miss Schallenberger was buried in Grafton, Saturday.

INDIGESTION AND MISERY IN STOMACH ARE ENDED FOREVER.

Miserable is the man or woman who suffers from dread Indigestion or Dyspepsia. There are few diseases which create such misery, long drawn-out suffering, as Indigestion. It pursues them before meals, after meals and between meals; they take it to bed with them. It is with them wherever they go, though Indigestion is the simplest disease of all to cure.

Tell such afflicted ones, dear reader, of Pape's Diapepsin; urge the sufferer to go to any Pharmacy here and give 50 cents for a case. Such a sufferer would ever bless you, because five minutes after taking there would be no more Indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the Stomach, or Heartburn, or fullness and discomfort, no Belching of Gas or Eructations of Sour food, Debilitating Headache, Nausea, Water Brash and other symptoms of a sour, disordered stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat without the aid of the Stomach.

Diapepsin is a wonderful Stomach purifier and splendid to keep the intestines clean and fresh; then your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Diapepsin will rest the stomach and increase the gastric juices; this is what is mostly needed—more and better digestive juices—and no Gas—then Indigestion and all stomach trouble will go.

Each 50-cent case contains sufficient to usually thoroughly cure the most chronic dyspeptic. * * *

DR. FRENCH'S GREAT SUCCESS

Proven by the Large Number of Patients and the Quickest and Most Satisfactory Methods.

You Should Have Dr. French Treat You to Be Certain of an Absolute, Permanent Cure for Any of the Diseases He Treats.

A CERTAIN CURE is what I will give you beyond doubt, if you are curable, and the best reference I could give as to professional reliability is the many cured, satisfied patients I dismiss.

There is absolutely no patchwork about the results of the course of treatment I give for each of the diseases I make a specialty of, for soon after beginning my treatment every symptom of disease disappears, and the trouble never returns.

B. F. French, M. D.

I CHARGE NOTHING TO PROVE MY METHODS WILL CURE YOU.

These are the diseases of which I have cured so many men—perhaps more than other specialists in St. Louis:

Blood Poison, Skin Diseases—I will give you treatment that will in a few days cure all rash, sores, ulcers and every sign and symptom. My treatment gets the poison out of the system instead of driving it in like other treatments. I cure blood poison and skin diseases so they cannot come back.

Varicose Enlargements — Leading first to inflammation, irritability and pain and eventually atrophy and other detrimental results, require and receive careful modern and scientific treatment and a safe and permanent cure.

The method I employ is the treatment you should have, and what you will likely have to have to be cured right. I do no cutting, and you suffer little or no pain or trouble. All signs disappear in a few days.

I also treat with the same success, Nervous Debility, Men's Urinary Troubles—Kidney, Bladder Diseases and other affections peculiar to men.

$5 to $10 Is All I Charge for Curing Some Cases.

I GUARANTEE TREATMENT TO COST YOU NOTHING unless you are absolutely cured and satisfied, and I give you a written certificate to return every dollar you pay me.

FREE CONSULTATION, EXAMINATION.

Call or write for information before taking treatment, as you will find my charges lower and treatment quicker and better than elsewhere.
